FEELER CHARGES DICTATORSHIP IN COURT PLAN; ASHURST, ROBINSON DEFEND ROOSEVELT PROPOSAL

DEPUTIES ROUTED BY UNION BACKERS IN STRIKE RIOTING

One Officer Is Reported Badly Beaten; Many Guards Threatened and Ordered 'Throw Away
Badges and Go Home.'

WINDOWS SMASHED IN COSTLY PLANT

Governor Will Be Requested to Send National Guardsmen if Tension Continues to Mount.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Feb. 19.—(AP)— Rioting flared suddenly tonight outside the strike-bound property of the Finstel Metallurgical Corporation, with special deputy sheriffs battling a crowd of approximately 200 union sympathizers.

The fighting began when several men surged out of the crowd and tore the badges off a half-dozen special officers recruited from farms and villages along the north shore.

Roving hands recruited from the crowd chased the deputies from their posts. Several officers lost their cudgels as well as their badges.

One was reportedly badly beaten.

The deputies retaliated with free use of their clubs and baseball bats.

In the first rush of officers, several persons were driven to the right-of-way of the Chicago & North Shore electric line and pushed off a six-foot ledge on to the tracks.

Guards Threatened.

Like a fuse, the disorder circled the fenced area surrounding the two buildings housing 52 leased and defiant sit-down strikers.

Shouts and yells filled the air. The guards were openly threatened and ordered to "throw away your badges and go home."

A number of sympathizers were cudgelled and retired with aching heads. No arrests were reported immediately.

The forces of the sympathizers were said to be about evenly matched, although as the fighting continued, the crowd began to increase in size.

Officers guarded an area about four blocks square. In one a steel fence, unlighted and unheated, lay the $1,500,000 plant, its windows smashed and the doors nailed shut.

Rioting broke out after it was thought peace would prevail for the night. Lake county officers had doubled their forces and the situation appeared under control.

Earlier today Sheriff L. A. Donnell's force of 125 men was beaten off in a two-hour attack on the strikers inside the plant.

Rioting Renewed.

The strikers had wrapped themselves in blankets and most of the crowd had dispersed when suddenly, the disorder broke out anew.

Federal and state authorities planned to bring representatives of both sides into a conference with State Director of Labor Martin P.
Dunbar tomorrow after failing to make any progress during the evening.

The strikers demand recognition of their Committee for Industrial Organization union. President A. J. Allison, of the corporation, said he would be glad to confer with any of his employees but would refuse to treat with Meyer Adelman, a C. I. O. organizer.

Deputy Sheriff Joe Welch reported the sheriff had advised Governor Henry Horner by telephone the "situation was out of control" and that he had deputized all available men.

If there is no break in the tension tomorrow, Welch added, the sheriff would request the Governor to send troops. Earlier, the sheriff had talked to Horner by telephone. He had told the Governor we need help.
He said he would send Dunbar, and that if Dunbar failed to bring about

Poll on High Court Reform Continues Against Roosevelt

Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Illinois Oppose Proposal.

While Washington delays action on the supreme court plan in order to hear from the country the American Institute of Public Opinion has been conducting a nation-wide scientific poll on the question at issue. Here are additional returns from four central states—plus first returns from a special poll of the country's legal profession. Both polls are exclusive in The Constitution.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Additional returns today from four central states continue to run against President Roosevelt's plan to reorganize the supreme court, as the American Institute of Public Opinion pushes its nation-wide referendum into every state in the Union.

Meanwhile the Institute has been distributing several thousand ballots to representative lawyers throughout the United States in a special poll.
Preliminary returns today find them virtually four to one against the President's proposal.

In the four central states—
Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Illinois
—a cross-section of all voters shows 67 per cent for the President's plan and 33 per cent opposed to it—as of today.

These are early figures. Public opinion may shift as the debate goes on in Washington. If it does, these changes will be reflected in later Institute reports.

But early figures from four states like Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Illinois help to foreshadow the bitterly close fight which may be ahead for the White House. These four states went Democratic last November by an average of approximately 60 per cent to 40 per cent.

Observers foresaw a cleavage in Democratic opinion in this area when Senators Minton and Van Nuys, of Indiana, both Democrats, recently took different sides on the court issue. Of five other Democratic Senators from the district only one, Senator George, took the opposite side.

WILD AUTO CHASES BY POLICE PROBED BY FULTON JURORS

Condemnation of Practice Is Expected in Presentments To Be Returned Next Week as Result of Testimony.

LIFE ENDANGERED, TRIBUNAL IS TOLD

Safety Held More Important Than Arrests of Rum Haulers, Bug Men;
2-Way Radio Studied.

Condemnation of wild automobile chases through Atlanta streets and recommendations for its elimination are expected to be included in the presentments of the Fulton grand jury next week, following the jury's questioning of special witnesses yesterday.

Two-way radios, to be installed in the county police cars as recommended by Commissioner Edwin F. Johnson, will be urged as the jury takes steps to minimize danger to innocent people from "liquor and lottery chasing automobiles," it was understood.

Commissioners George F. Longino and Johnson spent nearly two hours in conference with the grand jury yesterday, following which it was learned the jurors praised the commissioner for the manner in which it is handling county affairs.

It was indicated, following discussion of the wild police chases at three grand jury meetings, that the majority of the jurors believe the safety of human lives is of more importance than the catching of liquor haulers and lottery operators, although it believes everything possible should be done to arrest these violators.

Chief Questioned.

Chief George Matheson, of the county police, has been questioned by the grand jurors and it is understood he was told police should not chase suspicious cars, though they should not slacken their efforts to apprehend known criminals.

Commissioner Johnson was questioned in detail as to the advisability of installing two-way radios and how they would work.

The jurors had information showing that city officers received $1,547.88 for liquor cars they caught last year and that the county received $13,380 after all expenses were paid, from the sale of autos captured by officers during chases last year. County police

"Dave Says I 'Excited' Him"—Cool Romeo Smokes

Just before the recess yesterday in the
for $500,000 for breach of promise, Miss Garcia indignantly denied that she was married at the time she claims Rubinoff was courting her. The blonde declared the violinist once told her she "excited" him more than any other girl. Miss Garcia added: "I didn't know what he meant." Rubinoff frequently hid his face in his hands as gales of laughter greeted the cigar band-named girl's testimony.

Margaret Mitchell Is Honor Guest at Institute Dinner of Press Body.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 19.—Margaret Mitchell, internationally known author of "Gone With the Wind," came home tonight to Georgia editors in a surprise appearance at the Gridiron dinner of the Georgia Press Institute, which marked the closing feature of the third day of the tenth annual meeting of that body.

The world-famous writer made her first formal appearance at the banquet since she rode to fame and fortune over the blasted horse of Rhett Butler and Scarlett O'Hara, said a short piece in which she expressed her thanks to members of the Georgia press for their consideration of her and her book, and then retired on adjournment of the meeting as unostentatiously as she had entered the dining room of the hotel.

Jenkins Absent.

Perry Miller, executive of the Savannah Morning News and Savannah Evening Press, presided at the dinner
in the absence of Herschel Jenkins,
president of the publications, but Miss Emily Woodward acted as toastmaster. The Savannah newspapers were hosted at the dinner, which cleared the decks for a series of programs this morning, sponsored by The Atlanta Constitution. Mr. Jenkins is recovering from an illness and could not attend.

Hal Stanley, executive secretary of the Georgia Press Association, was instructed to wire regrets at the inability of Jenkins to attend tonight's meeting.

Man Is Found Slain At Railroad Crossing

The body of an unidentified man, shot through the back, was discovered about 6:30 o'clock last night beside the tracks of the Southern Railroad, 200 yards southeast of the McDonnell street crossing.

The man was found by H. M. Stone, of 336 Central avenue, Hapeville, a railroad employee. Taken to Grady hospital, the man was pronounced dead and the body removed to Autry & Lowndes funeral home pending identification. The victim's pockets were empty and police are investigating the slaying from a robbery angle.

Police said the man evidently was shot shortly after dark last night as the bullet wound was newly made.

The victim is described as 45 or 50 years old, five feet six inches tall, with black hair and wore a dark suit with a brown checked shirt.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Peggy Garcia, suing Dave Rubinoff upon the claim his failure to marry her was worth half a million to her, testified today she was very much in love with the aquat maestro, or anyhow, at the very least:

"I was very much infatuated."

To counsel and courtroom at large she added the rhetorical question:
"How's that?"

Late in the day court was abruptly adjourned until Tuesday after Rubinoff's attorney, Abraham Halprin, asserted Miss Garcia was a married woman in 1935—at the time she claims Rubinoff gave her the run-around.

Halprin asserted he had a telegram from Peggy's father in Roanoke, Va., to prove it.

She flatly denied the statement. The only marriage she has said anything about was to one some six months ago to a "young business man" she refused to identify further—and this attachment, she claimed, was fatally hurt because of Rubinoff.

The long adjournment of the trial was taken by some to mean that witnesses from Virginia might be called.
At least one of the names of witnesses were identified by Cornelius Harvey Taylor as those of his daughter, Pauline Michelin Taylor.

Identification was confirmed by his daughter, Mrs. Raymond Hall. Mrs.
Hall said she had received numerous letters from her sister in New York
in the absence of Herschel Jenkins,
president of the publications, but Miss
Emily Woodward acted as toastmas-
ter. The Savannah newspapers were hosted at the dinner, which cleared the decks for a series of programs this
Constitution. Mr. Jenkins is recovering from an illness and could not attend.

Hal Stanley, executive secretary of
the Georgia Press Association, was

Madison County Commissioner Is Arrested With Whisky Cargo

DANIELSVILLE, Ga., Feb. 19.—
Arrested while allegedly in possession of approximately 30 gallons of corn whisky, W. H. Compton, of Comer, commissioner of roads and revenue of Madison county, today was at liberty under $1,000 bond following his appearance before United

$2,500 HOMESTEAD BILL IS APPROVED

House Body Favors Freeing Small Houses From All Except City Taxes.

A house committee yesterday approved a $2,500 homestead tax exemption bill and placed it in line for assembly action next week.

The bill, approved by the constitutional amendments committee, would exempt homesteads up to the value of $2,500 from state, county and school taxes, but not from municipal levies.

The committee's action came a day after Governor Rivers urged submission of an exemption amendment to the voters.

The measure recommended for passage was a substitute to one originally introduced by Lanier, Harris and Barrett, of Richmond, and Mc-Graw, of Meriwether, calling for a $5,000 exemption from all taxes, including municipal.

In his address to the general assembly Wednesday, Rivers asked no specific amount, but said:

"If we exempt up to $2,500, we will fill our state with $5,000 homes; if we exempt up to $5,000, we will fill our state with $10,000 homes."

He also suggested it would be advisable to make the exemption the same as that applying to Florida, due to the fact that the neighboring states competed to some extent for the residences of the same people.

Florida Exemption $5,000.

The Florida exemption is $5,000.
The committee's report on the substitute bill will reach the house floor
Monday, and Speaker Roy V. Harris said the measure should come up for action Tuesday.

SENATE IS SCENE OF BITTER DEBATE OVER REVAMPING

Gillette Urges Legislation To Forbid High Tribunal To Void Acts

More Members Dissent.

SENATOR BAILEY JOINS OPPONENTS

American Federation of Investors' Head Announces Organization Is Against Packing Court.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP)— Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, bluntly charged "dictatorship" and efforts to "pack" the supreme court tonight after the irrepressible dispute over President Roosevelt's court reorganization proposal had flared for the first time into a bit-

Before a crowded chamber, sittently attentive, Chairman Ashurst, of the senate judiciary committee, defended the White House program, as "the mildest" of proposals, and Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, asserted a campaign had been organized to defeat it by control of publicity outlets.

The grimly determined foes of the Roosevelt program made little response to the arguments presented in the senate, but tonight both Wheeler and Representative Guyer, Republican, Kansas, another avowed opponent, carried their cause to the public with radio speeches.

Packing Charged.

"A liberal cause was never won by stacking a deck of cards, nor by stuffing a ballot box, nor by packing a court," said Wheeler in a speech prepared for delivery. "The trail of true progressivism is long, but it is right."

Asserting that "if there must be dictatorship in America," it is at least that of the people, the Montana said he was "opposed to the executive branch of the government usurping the powers either of the legislative branch or of the judicial branch and the proposal of the administration has for its purpose only that."

Interrupting a lengthy speech by Ashurst, who introduced the bill prepared by the administration to put six new justices on the supreme court, Robinson said: "There is a strongly organized force seeking to control every publicity agency in the United States to cry down this plan for the reorganization of the judiciary as something unfair and subversive."

Robinson then proceeded to discuss the administration proposal, which calls for the appointment of one new justice for each judge past 70 who fails to retire.

"The whole fire of the opposition has been concentrated and directed on the proposal as it relates to the supreme court," Robinson said. "I want someone to tell me why a different rule either with respect to retirement or with respect to the appointment of additional judges shall be applied to the district courts and to the circuit courts of appeal from that which is applied to the supreme court of the United States."

It is admitted that as to the judges of the so-called inferior courts there comes a time in life when physical and mental powers are diminishing and impaired. I ask what is there that warrants the conclusion that... those who have the final judgment
... should be held exempt."

Ashurst said that under the circumstances, he marveled at the moderation of the President. He contended that if enacted, the bill would make no change in the fundamental government.

Tenancy Program Is Forecast in Poll

President Roosevelt has the support of the nation's voters in the program he outlined this week to eradicate farm tenancy.

According to the results of an American Institute of Public Opinion poll, published exclusively in The Constitution December 13, more than eight out of every ten voters favor the President's proposal to lend money to tenant farmers so they may acquire land.

The Institute asked a representative cross-section of voters this question: "Would you favor the government loans, on a long-time and easy basis, to enable farm tenants to buy the farms they now rent?"

The vote was: Yes, 83 per cent; no, 17 per cent.

In reporting the results of the poll, the Institute commented:
"Government action has heretofore been delayed by debate over methods.
Today's poll indicates one line of procedure which, at least in principle, meets with widespread public approval."

The statement was written two months before the President announced himself in favor of loans to tenant farmers.

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Feb. 19.
Even in olden days, before they broke loose, women envied us every masculine person who had, except the moustache and possibly chewing tobacco. Since emancipa-tion, seems like they've taken over practically everything we had, except the bars are crowded with women, and the smoking rooms and the barber shops and the gambling clubs and the prize fights and the wrestling matches and the political campuses. If it weren't for them, the race tracks and the night spots would languish and the cocktail mixers might get an occasional rest. Maybe, as a distinguished scientist now arises to proclaim, they could have excelled us in our then exclusive fields, only before this they didn't get a chance to prove it.

But now—well, the hand that rocked the cradle is the hand that rules the world. Still, before they threw us overboard, we were pretty fair boat rockers our own selves.

WIANIN RESIGNS POST WITH SECURITY BOARD; SEIDEMAN ALSO QUILTS

Ex-Republican Governor Is Believed Slated for New Cabinet Post.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP)—John G. Winant's retirement from the Social Security Board stirred fresh speculation today that the former Republican governor of New Hampshire might be slated for a proposed new cabinet post.

Winant, who quit the board chairmanship once before—last September—to answer campaign attacks on the social security act, stepped out again today after returning to the post long enough to complete organization work.

In accepting his resignation, President Roosevelt expressed hope he would soon return to public service. There already had been talk in the capital that Winant might be appointed secretary of social welfare if Congress grants Mr. Roosevelt's request that such a cabinet post be created to direct social security, relief and other welfare activities.

Arthur J. Altmeyer, of Wisconsin, already a member of the security board, moved up today to the chairmanship. Murray W. Latimer, of New York, director of federal old-age pension benefits, was appointed to the security board vacancy.

The President revealed that Winant had tendered his second resignation January 9.

Mr. Roosevelt said he was grateful for Winant's "splendid service." In an exchange of letters, Winant told the President the security act should be amended.

He said amendments already had been prepared for submission to Congress, and that careful plans had been formulated to defend the act in the courts.

Henry P. Seidemann, director of the old-age benefits bureau of the Social Security Board, followed Winant into retirement. The board appointed Lottor H. H. Richmond, Va., to succeed him.

Seidemann said he wanted to return to his duties at the Brookings Institution which loaned him to the Social Security Board.

mental setup and leave the powers of the supreme court unaffected. If it would work out otherwise, he said, he would be opposed to it.

Bone Questions Ashurst.

Senator Bone, Democrat, Washington, co-author with Wheeler of a resolution to give Congress power to set aside supreme court decisions by a two-thirds vote, asked Ashurst if the Roosevelt measure would bring about a change in the court's attitude toward legislative action.

"I am not going to be led or driven into a position," Ashurst replied. "I am not going to be led or driven into a position."

Chidingly, Senator Bailey, Democrat, North Carolina, read a quotation from an old speech of Ashurst's denouncing as "ridiculous, absurd and unfair" imputations that the President intended increasing the court membership.

Smilingly, Ashurst conceded and defended the inconsistency.

"I pride myself upon that rather rare virtue of correcting myself if I think I am wrong," he said.

Ashurst's speech was preceded by an address by Senator Gillette, Democrat, Iowa, his first in the senate, denouncing the proposed measure.

NORTH CAROLINA ENDS 28-YEAR-OLD DRY RULE

Both Houses Adopt Conference Report on County Option Liquor Stores.

RALEIGH, N. C., Feb. 19.—(AP)—The North Carolina legislature today enacted a county option liquor store bill, thus ending a 28-year-old prohibition era for most of the state. Eighteen counties became wet by special acts two years ago.

Both houses adopted a conference report, leaving only the formality of ratification remaining before the act becomes law. Legislative attaches said it would probably be ratified tomorrow or Monday.

Under its terms, county boards of commissioners may call elections upon their own initiative, or, if they do not act, a petition signed by 15 per cent of a county's voters will provide for an election.

Immediately upon ratification, citizens of any county, although it is dry, may own and transport as much as a gallon of liquor for their own use if it is bought from a liquor store in this state or elsewhere.

ALABAMA HOUSE VOTES MORE PAY FOR JUDGES

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 19.—(AP)—While the 2 per cent sales tax bill was being checked by Governor Bibb Graves' legal adviser before the chief executive's signature made it law, a bill raising salaries for the state judges and executive and legislative salaries passed the house today. The sales tax bill will not receive the Governor's signature until Monday or Tuesday, his secretary said.

SOUTH CAROLINA HOUSE ASKS FINE FOR JUDGES

COLUMBIA, S. C., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Without a dissenting vote, the house today called on Comptroller General A. J. Beattie for details of appropriations and expenditures for the two fiscal years, 1935-36 and 1936-37.

"INSULT" CHARGED IN ARKANSAS HOUSE

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 19.—(AP)—A charge that a member of the legislature's House Speaker committee had "insulted" citizens of Hot Springs was made in the house today. Representative Garland Manner, of Hot Springs, charged Representative Lee Nichols, minister-representative and member of the investigating committee, had "insulted" Mrs. Earl Witt, wife of the eighteenth district judge, when he told her they were in the house yesterday for the inquiry reports. "Nichols told them they didn't have a constitutional right to this floor," he approached him and told him to his face he was a damned liar and I'll tell him again."

Attacks Cummings.

Referring to Attorney General Cummings' speech in favor of the President's proposal, Cox asked whether "the attorney general was speaking as a great constitutional lawyer or as a mere politician when he made this assault upon the court."

"The advocates of change," Cox said, "charge the supreme court with responsibility for all constitutional limitations on legislative power, and therefore, for the defeat of so-called progressive legislation, or acts of Congress held contrary thereto. If a law is held, then the legislative body is responsible for it, not the court."

Cox said "it is by no means pleasing to me to take a position contrary to that of my party chief," but "this proposal, however, transcends in importance all party warfare."

Strikes at Roots.

"It is something that strikes at the very root of things, and if put into effect would bring about not only a shifting of the powers of government, but a change in the form of government."

Concluding his address, Cox said the present constitution was a barrier "set up by the fathers against a wild and tyrannous Congress. It is the people's best defense against the abuse of power by Congress. Friends of America, is not this question perfectly clear to you?"

"Do you not see what is at stake in this beloved country of ours? This is not merely a subtle attack upon constitutional democracy, but it is an open and bold assault upon the institution of liberty."

SHERMAN ON STAMPS RESULTS IN PROTESTS AND 'BOYCOTT' THREAT

Confederate Soldiers, U. D. C. Chapters Say Georgia 'Had Enough of Him.'

Postage stamps commemorating General William Tecumseh Sherman were regarded with hostility yesterday in Georgia, locale of his "march to the sea."

Protests and threats of boycotts came from old Confederate soldiers who fought against the federal Union and from Daughters of the Confederacy although the stamps, which went on sale in Washington Wednesday were not yet offered here. One hundred and three-year-old J. H. Herb, commented vehemently that he had "enough of Sherman" during four years in the Confederate army.

Another veteran, R. Jordan, 94, echoed these sentiments saying "he had no regard for lives or property." Mrs. Forest Kibler, president of the Atlanta Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, said she would boycott the issue outright by buying other denominations.

She asked: "Why issue a stamp for Sherman when he caused so much suffering?" she asked.

The chapter board adopted resolutions saying "the wounds and disfigurements created by the War Between the States should not be freshened and the deeds and acts of this army officer should not be glorified." A general boycott was hinted.

Other opponents included Mrs. Mary C. Goudelock, matron of the Confederate home, and Mrs. Helen Williams Coxson, state legislator, and Mrs. Herbert Fay Gaffney, of Columbus, Ga., president of the Lizzie Rutherford U. D. C. Chapter.

On the other side of the question was McWhorter Miller, of Atlanta, commander of a six-state division of the Sons of Confederate Veterans. "I don't believe creating a fight will do us any good," he said.

At least one Confederate veteran joined him. J. T. Miller, 94, advised, "Let the dead past bury its dead."

General Sherman campaigned through the heart of the south with the strategy of cutting off Confederate supplies.

In Washington, Roy M. North, of the Postoffice Department, himself a Georgian, said protests were "great for sales." He added that the department will issue other stamps next month honoring the southern leaders, Generals Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson.

F. D. R.'S SON TO SPEAK ON CHILD LABOR LAW

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP)—James Roosevelt, son of the President, and Herbert Hoover, former President, are to speak on Saturday over the air.

Roosevelt talks from Gardner, Mass., via WOR-MBS at 8 p. m. (Atlanta time) on child labor amendment.

Mr. Hoover is expected to deliver a non-partisan address on the supreme court question before the Union League Club of Chicago with a WPTZ-NBC transmission at 9 o'clock (Atlanta time).

As an added broadcast, WFAF, NBC at 6 p. m. (Atlanta time) will bring in from Nanking an English translation by Miss Chiang Kai-shek, wife of the generalissimo of China, of her husband's speech on "China's New Life Movement."

Claudette Colbert Stars in Film at Fox

A glimpse into the days of Puritan England is one view of the Fox theater, where "Maid of Salem," starring Claudette Colbert and Fred MacMurray opened a week's engagement yesterday.

Besides Miss Colbert and MacMurray, others in the cast are Harvey Stephens, Louise Dresser, Edward Ellis, and Gale Sondergaard, each of whom contributes to the film's excellence.

Honors, too, must go to Frank Lloyd, the director, who gave the motion picture world such outstanding cinemas as "Cavalcade" and "Mutiny on the Bounty." Lloyd is up to his usual high standard in his latest celluloid opus.

The film tells an engrossing love story against the background of life in colonial days, during that period in American history when the famous witchcraft scare caused a reign of terror in 1692.

Miss Colbert, as the woman whose naturalness and love of life lead her into the net of fear created by the witchcraft scare, displays unusual ability, while MacMurray, as a fighting son of Virginia, is splendid.

Rounding out the bill in a satisfactory way are several interesting short subjects.—M. H.

'Last of Mrs. Cheyney' Is Hit at Loew's Grand

Smart, sophisticated and acted far above the average, "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney" based on the famous play by Frederick Lonsdale, delighted opening day audiences yesterday at Loew's Grand theater.

As to why not? For the stars of the clever piece are Joan Crawford, William Powell, Robert Montgomery and Frank Morgan, with a fine supporting cast including Jessie Ralph, Nigel Bruce, Colleen Clare, Benita Hume, Ralph Forbes, Aileen Pringle and Melville Cooper.

Admirably directed by Richard Boleslawski, the film is packed with witty lines and amusing situations, as it unfolds its tale of a London shopgirl who turns thief and then conquers the gay social world, with unexpected and romantic consequences.

Miss Crawford plays her role up to the hilt, and Powell, as her butler, and brains of a gang of international thieves, and Montgomery, as a romantic young English peer, scheme as splendid foils for her talents.

Short subjects, a "Mickey Mouse" and "News of the Day" complete one of the best programs presented in a long time.—L. F.

glary last Friday night at the home of Mrs. G. B. Denman at 217 West-minster drive.

Dyer said the boy told him more jewelry was buried in a fruit jar under a rock on Stewart avenue. The empty fruit jar was found by the detectives during their search last night, and search is in progress for the boy.

Shortly after the arrest of Dyer, Mrs. Louise Poor, of Winchester, Mass., wife of a wealthy New York and Boston business executive, a house guest of Mrs. Denman's identified as her property jewelry found on Dyer, according to police.

This included a solid platinum wrist watch, set with 300 diamonds, valued at $3,000; a jade earrings and ring, valued at $350; a $125 locket and chain, bearing gold-engraved likenesses of Mrs. Poor's four sons, and pin, set with 200 small pearls, valued at more than $50. Mrs. Denman identified $300 worth of jewelry as her property, including a wedding ring given to her late daughter by her late son-in-law, P. W. (Pat) Hammond, managing editor of The Constitution.

Detectives said last night they instructed Baltimore police to investigate a jeweler in that city, as a possible "fence" for a band of jewel thieves. They also said they are investigating a theory recent burglaries here have been the work of small boys, trained to enter homes and rob them.

Mrs. Poor had been visiting a son in Florida, prior to her visit here. Dyer was arrested after he left a street car. The detectives said he ran at their approach. Victims of recent burglaries were urged last night to view alleged loot found on Dyer.

Homicide Squad Probes Goat Murder Mystery

"Investigate the murder of a goat" was the unusual assignment given yesterday to members of the police homicide squad.

The order was given after J. M. Collins, of 761 Edgewood avenue, N. E., reported finding the animal, its throat slashed with a razor, in the rear of his home.

"I can't figure out who might have done such a low trick," said McMillan, in reporting the murder. "The goat had no enemies, that I know of, and I'm puzzled for a motive."

Grace Moore Scores In New Hit At Rialto

As charming and captivating as ever is Grace Moore in "When You're in Love," which opened its engagement yesterday at the Rialto theater.

A worthy successor to her previous cinema successes, "When You're in Love" elicited with the opening day audiences and one again revealed Miss Moore as the tops of movieland's singing stars.

Besides Miss Moore, whose voice is the chief charm of the picture, the excellent supporting cast includes Cary Grant, Aline MacMahon, Henry Stephenson, Thomas Mitchell, Catherine Dunster, Louis Alberni, Gerald Oliver Smith, Emma Dunn, George Pearce and Frank Puglia.

With tuneful melodies by Jerome Kern, creator of many song hits, and written and directed by Robert Riskin, the film has just about everything to please the most critical taste. Lovers of music, dancing and singing will more than enjoy Miss Moore's latest offering.

The plot revolves mainly about Miss Moore's marriage to Grant, whom she pays to marry her, so that she can enter the country legally from Mexico, to be in time to sing at her old teacher's song festival. Of course, complications and romance develop, with love triumphant in the end.

It's grand entertainment. You'll love it. Short subjects round out the bill.—B. R. M.

Kay Francis Starred On Paramount Screen

Wearing a variety of gowns as only Kay Francis can wear them, "Stolen Holiday," starring the glamorous Miss Francis, Ian Hunter and Claude Rains, opened a week's run yesterday at the Paramount theater.

An admirable vehicle for Miss Francis' histrionic, as well as clothes-wearing ability, the film tells a romantic story of the rich and the poor, of a woman who falls in love with a man who is a thief.

Men, as well as women, will enjoy this picture, which gives interesting glimpses into smart feminine shops, with plenty of attractive mannequins displaying clothes designed, in the picture, of course, by the fashion-dictating Kay.

But gowns are not all of the story. There is a substantial love element, furnished by Hunter, and rough-and-ready melodrama, furnished by Rains, who is seen as a scheming financier who finally brings Paris and the financial world tumbling about his head.

When Rains' house of cards collapses, citizens of Paris seek to mob him, resulting in some of the best mob scenes caught by cameras in many a long day.

Completing the bill, like a good dinner, are a variety of interesting short subjects.—C. F. C.

GAS STATION BANDIT IDENTIFIED AS TURNER

One of two armed bandits who early last night held up J. T. Norris, attendant at a gasoline station at South Main and Taylor streets, East Point, was positively identified, from a photograph, as Forrest Turner, notorious escapee.

Norris said the bandits entered the station in a new model Buick sedan, drew pistols and forced him to hand over between $20 and $25 in cash. They then commanded him to jump over a small fence in the rear of the station. The bandits then fled.

Shown a photograph of Turner at police headquarters, Norris said, "That was one of them."

Born on a farm himself, Ford believes the laboring man should spend a part of his time in the field, another part in the factory and have some time for study and recreation.

He said workers should have an opportunity to own a garden, even if industry must furnish the necessary land.

ator Bulkley, of Ohio, is reported to be committed to the President's plan. Senators Lewis and Dieterich, of Illinois; Senator Brown, of Michigan, and Senator Donahay, of Ohio, are reported "noncommittal."

Today's poll shows how this senatorial split has spread among anti-file Democrats too. Approximately one Democrat in three who voted for Roosevelt in November now takes sides with the opposition in today's preliminary balloting from the four central states.

Lawyers Opposed, 4 to 1. No matter what the public opinion eventually veers on the Roosevelt plan, history will undoubtedly record the American legal profession as overwhelmingly opposed to it.

MONKTON IS EN ROUTE TO TALK WITH EDWARD

Bad Weather Interrupts Flight of Cornwall Attorney in Germany.

COLOGNE, Germany, Feb. 19.—(AP) Bad weather over Germany today interrupted the air journey of Sir Walter T. Monkton, believed en route to Vienna for a financial conference with the Duke of Windsor. He continued by train.

Sir Walker, attorney general for the Duchy of Cornwall, revenues of which went to the former King Edward VIII before his abdication, started from Hendon airport, London, early today in the Duke's own airplane with Captain Edward Healey Fielden, once Edward's pilot at the war.

They ran into a storm near Frankfurt. Captain Fielden decided to land at Cologne. Sir Walker enquired for Austria's Captain Fielden, said he would fly to Vienna tomorrow if the weather is favorable.

Reports the former King has been enlarging the airfield near Ennsfeld castle, his residence the last two months, added interest to the flight.

(London reported another conference between the Duke and Sir Walker, and financial problems might be held when his favorite brother, the Duke of Kent, goes to the continent Saturday for a three-week holiday.

Kent and his wife planned to visit the latter's sister in Munich, which, it is pointed out, is only two hours by air from Ennsfeld.)

GEORGE WILL REQUEST PROFITS TAX CHANGE

undistributed profits tax, applicable to surpluses piled up by corporations. "I don't see how it can be amended now looking to amending the act."

"Unless the provision is repealed outright," he said today, "amendments must be passed making exemptions for paying debts of corporations, repairing plant expansion and betterment of plant operations. Otherwise industry cannot take up unemployment through expansion."

Representative Robert Ramspeck, of Atlanta, was one of those who said he would to study the resolutions adopted by the state assembly before making an extended statement, but he declared, if it is shown that certain classes of people are being discriminated against in operation of the undistributed profits tax section of existing law, "I would favor an amendment that would correct the situation."

In addition, Minton is assistant majority whip in the senate.

The victory dinners are being held over the nation and are expected to be the means by which the national committee's deficit, incurred during the last campaign, can be paid off and a surplus accumulated to carry on party work. Tickets to the local dinner will cost $10, the sum in excess of the actual cost of the dinner being forwarded to the national committee to be added to the victory dinner fund.

Minton is a veteran of the World War, having served as a captain of infantry and was overseas for one year.

Coming to the senate in 1934 in the midst of the Roosevelt first administration, he early attracted attention by his strong support of the New Deal President. His first speech on the floor, an attack on the supreme court's invalidation of AAA, forecasted the active part he is now playing in the controversy aroused by the President's recommendations for reorganization of the federal judiciary, which he is vigorously supporting.

It was Senator Minton who gave the first intimation that President Roosevelt was considering some drastic change in the highest tribunal's organization. Only a few weeks ago he announced after a conference with Mr. Roosevelt at the White House that the chief executive was studying the entire situation with a view of later proposals.

Because his wife preferred the climate of Indiana he returned home, only to be elected to the senate a few years later.

Seventy-nine per cent of these replies vote "No" to the question of increasing the size of the court, while 21 per cent vote "Yes."

In a supplementary question the lawyers were asked: "Do you think that supreme court justices should quit when they reach 70?" The nation-wide tally shows 30 per cent of the bar voting "Yes," as compared with 70 per cent voting "No."

Scattered Returns From U. S. Scattered returns from the nation at large two days ago indicated 47 per cent of the voters favored President Roosevelt's plan to 53 per cent who opposed it.

Previous reports from certain eastern states found New England divided in the same proportion as the country—53 to 47 against the plan. New York state, however, registered 56 per cent in favor of the change in preliminary balloting last week.

Additional returns will add to this picture in the next few days, and subsequent surveys will follow the issue as it develops.

Orator at Victory Dinner

SENATOR SHERMAN MINTON.

MINTON WILL SPEAK AT VICTORY BANQUET

Senator From Indiana, Court Revision Backer, to Address Atlantans.

United States Senator Sherman Minton, junior senator from Indiana, and a vigorous advocate of President Roosevelt's court revision plan, will be one of the speakers at the Democratic victory dinner here March 4.

Alex MacDonaght, chairman for Atlanta, announced yesterday in New York.

The dinner here will be held at the Henry Grady hotel and plans have been made for an attendance of approximately 500 persons. MacDonaght was appointed by James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, Cam Dorsey, of Atlanta, heads the state organization, which plans dinners in at least seven cities.

Senator Minton has been a vigorous advocate of the President's court plan from its introduction and Monday night charged that "the supreme court is now packed with appointees of administrations gone and repudiated."

He is one of the younger senators, being 46 years old and serving his first term. He was elected in 1934, without previous service in congress. That he was elected on the basis of the speeches in favor of the Roosevelt court program is indicative of his rapidly gained prestige in the nation's upper half.

The victory dinners are being held over the nation and are expected to be the means by which the national committee's deficit, incurred during the last campaign, can be paid off and a surplus accumulated to carry on party work. Tickets to the local dinner will cost $10, the sum in excess of the actual cost of the dinner being forwarded to the national committee to be added to the victory dinner fund.

Minton is a veteran of the World War, having served as a captain of infantry and was overseas for one year.

Coming to the senate in 1934 in the midst of the Roosevelt first administration, he early attracted attention by his strong support of the New Deal President. His first speech on the floor, an attack on the supreme court's invalidation of AAA, forecasted the active part he is now playing in the controversy aroused by the President's recommendations for reorganization of the federal judiciary, which he is vigorously supporting.

It was Senator Minton who gave the first intimation that President Roosevelt was considering some drastic change in the highest tribunal's organization. Only a few weeks ago he announced after a conference with Mr. Roosevelt at the White House that the chief executive was studying the entire situation with a view of later proposals.

MEXICAN LABORITES FIGHTS CHURCH OPENING

ASSEMBLY MUST EASE REAL ESTATE BURDEN, LESTER REPORT AVERS

Balanced Tax Program Now Useless, He Asserts in Committee Survey.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Feb. 19.—W. M. Lester, chairman of the Georgia Commission on Economy and Taxation, said in his report here today it would be useless to submit a "balanced program of taxation" until some "definite assurance is given that the present burdensome levy on real estate will be reduced."

His commission was created by the 1935 legislature, and his report made public today was addressed to former Governor Talmadge.

Lester said in his report "county governments in this state are particularly unduly expensive" and added "the various counties of the state are performing functions which should be performed by the state. As a result the people of such counties are not only burdened with excessive taxation but are failing to receive the services which they are entitled to."

County Situation.

The Lester report sums up the county situation thus: "A study of the income and expenditures of our county and other local governmental units clearly shows the great problem of this state is reform of our antiquated local governmental units. The officials of these local governmental units are largely capable and efficient, but unable to give the people of this state economical and efficient government due to the type of organizations of such units and lack of budget control. County governments in this state are particularly unduly expensive. The various counties of the state are performing functions which should be performed by the state. As a result the people of such counties are not only burdened with excessive taxation but are failing to receive the services which they are entitled to."

"Various plans have been suggested for reform of our county and local governmental units. Further study will have to be made, however, before any successful plan can be adopted. The general assembly should not delay any longer the passage of a bill requiring the annual audit of our local governmental units and the filing of such audit with either the state auditor or some other state official who should compile annually such information and publish the same. Such official should at the same time be given authority to see that local governmental units follow a uniform method of bookkeeping and accounting in order that the audit may be uniform. Other progressive states throughout the union follow such plan and we believe if the general assembly will give careful consideration to the drawing of a bill which will not eliminate the auditing work of the various certified public accountants almost unanimous approval can be obtained for the passage of such bill."

Commission Proposed.

"It would be well, after the passage of such bill, for the general assembly to give consideration to the appointment of a commission to study reform in our county and local governmental units. The state should assume its responsibility for the education of every child in the state as this function of government clearly belongs to the state together with the operations of the courts, roads and care of the indigent. Unless the state is prepared to assume these functions of government provision should be made to allow the coordination and consolidation of such activities by the city and county government."

"It has been advocated for some time that the number of counties be reduced in this state. It will not be possible to do this, however, on account of the peculiar county unit system of voting in our primaries. The consolidation and reorganization of the various functions of our governmental units will largely eliminate the necessity for reduction of the number of counties and allow us to continue the county unit system of voting as well as representation by the various counties in the general assembly."

Comment on Talmadge.

Saying he was mailing a copy of his report to all members of the state legislature, Lester, in the report, said of Talmadge: "Due to the economical, efficient and business-like administration of the state government under you as chief executive, we have reaped the benefit for the past four years of 'modernizing and simplifying our state government.' He said 'our state today has the honor of being in better financial condition than any other state in the Union.'"

The report urged legislators to "give careful consideration in the future to any plan which would add additional boards, commissions, departments or offices."

Resides Lester, H. B. Edwards, Val-dosta; Roy McVintie, Chatsworth; J. Ellis Pope, Lyons; State Auditor Tom Wisdom; A. M. Zellner, Forsyth; Mills R. Lane, Savannah; S. E. Vandiver, Loxley; R. T. Hampton, Blue Ridge; W. L. McElmurray, Waynesboro; and Allen Campbell, Americus, are members of the commission.

southeast. Telephonic transmission is the fastest and most modern method of sending pictures from distant points, experts claim.

Georgia editors attending the convention expressed keen interest in the mechanism and its performance. The transmissions were one of the outstanding features of today's activities.

Unity in Advertising.

During the afternoon, Milton L. Fleetwood, editor of the Cartersville Tribune-News, announced that Georgia editors are preparing to enter a supplementary association for state-wide publication of advertising. Although he did not explain the plan in detail, it was assumed that those who will enter will agree to accept accounts for all members, that a central business office will be established and advertisers will thus be able to deal with a large group of Georgia newspapers by contacting those in charge of the central office.

Georgia Press Institute Wired Photos Transmitted Direct From Athens to The Constitution Via Telephone

Margaret Mitchell (left) internationally known author of "Gone With the Wind" was a surprise guest last night at the Gridiron dinner of the tenth annual Georgia Press Institute in Athens. She is shown here with Percy Miller, executive of the Savannah Morning News and Savannah Evening Press, and Miss Emily Woodward, former president of the Georgia Press Association and Institute founder.

ing to surprise the author of "Gone With the Wind." "I didn't know this was going to be a surprise party for me," Miss Mitchell said. "I want to thank Miss Woodward for her introduction."

She then delivered to Mr. Miller an old-fashioned moustache cup which she said was for Mr. Jenkins, and put the children away from my husband. Others were that I am blind. If you had been my blood kin, you could not have been nicer to me. I appreciate it. "I read the Georgia newspapers and you have no idea how much of them went into my book. I know about the towns and the country from them. I appreciate being invited here, and am happy to be here."

Unspoiled by Fame.

Margaret Mitchell is the same unspoiled and retiring personality she always has been. She sat tonight and witnessed a humorous contest staged by Miss Woodward as to "what became of Rhett and Scarlett" and smilingly accepted scores of suggested endings to her book. All the guests at the dinner party were invited to make suggestions.

Frank Eleazer, editor of the Emory Wheel and vice president of the Georgia Collegiate Press Association, ventured the opinion that "both were trampled to death in a rush to get Margaret Mitchell's autograph" and won three toy balloons for his trouble.

A festive air prevailed the meeting tonight. Balloons and colored paper hats were at every place as favors. Guests were served "Margaret Mitchell" wine and "John R. Marsh" pound cake.

Georgia editors prepared tonight to swing into the final day and grand climax of the sessions tomorrow with a series of events, sponsored by The Atlanta Constitution.

Beginning with a ringing assertion by Mrs. William Brown Meloney, editor of "This Week," that the newspaper profession is the most important profession in the world, and running the gamut of news problems, the dinner tonight rounded out the day's features.

Mrs. Meloney also paid a tribute to Henry Woodfin Grady, famous early editor of The Constitution, and to Dr. George Gallup, of the Institute of Public Opinion. She praised Grady's sincerity and his ability, adding he was one of the greatest editors of all time and lauded the accuracy of the Gallup polls.

Mrs. Meloney's address was the feature of the day's activities. She is former editor of the Delmar and is well known in journalistic and literary circles of the nation.

She sounded a stern warning against the forces which are boring into the republic from within and from the outside, and called on the newspapers of the nation to be courageous and to fight for the inalienable right of the freedom of the press and freedom of speech.

Comments Press.

Paying high tribute to the press, Mrs. Meloney said:

"Without the press, the mortality rate from tuberculosis, cancer, contagious disease, maternity and infants could not have been reduced. An enlightened press helps educate readers to needless dangers. The press must be kept in the hands of educated persons who have the proper perspective and conscience."

"The press must remain dedicated to service. It must retain intelligence, character and courage."

"There are forces at work which plan deliberately to attack the freedom of speech and the freedom of the press. Our government was founded on the freedom of speech and the freedom of the press—freedom to serve God as we see fit. Freedom is never won. We must always be vigilant."

"In Germany, one of the nation's outstanding critics was jailed because he laughed a little in a criticism of Hitler. In Italy, another critic of the government was shot to death because he protested when firearms were placed in the hands of ten-year-old youths."

to preserve freedom. England can not control its colonies in an emergency. England and the English empire are too heterogeneous.

"Men trust in the United States as in no other country on earth. We build our homes on the installment plan and we engage in large business transactions on credit. Unless we recognize the forces at work, unless we are conscious of the determined forces are resistant, they will undermine our democracy."

"The newspaper profession is the most important profession in the world today because without it other professions cannot survive. A high reputation rests on the press of the nation."

During a round table discussion of "factors which the advertising agency considers in selecting media," Charles M. Snyder, advertising director of The Constitution, today told editors if their publications are good advertising media they will and should stand on their own feet.

"Weekly newspapers do not capitalize on what they have," he added. "They do not even bid advertisers promptly nor do they submit tear sheets."

George C. Bigness, business manager of the Journal, speaking on the same subject and dealing with large dailies, asserted: "Advertisers in large dailies are interested in the volume of circulation, the character of circulation and how that circulation is Among the prominent newspaper executives taking part in yesterday's round-table discussions at the Georgia Press Institute in Athens were Thomas M. Seawell (left), editor of the Windsor News; C. M. Snyder (center), advertising director of The Constitution; and Louie L. Morris, editor of the Hartwell Sun. The photo was sent by wire from a downtown Athens hotel direct to The Constitution.

Georgia editors and others yesterday were treated to a demonstration of telephonic transmission of news pictures as The Atlanta Constitution set up a portable outfit in the Georgian hotel in Athens to cover sessions of the Georgia Press Institute. Kenneth Rogers, Constitution photographer and expert operator of the intricate equipment, is shown above with a group around the sending unit. Left to right, Rogers, Charles Hardy, manager Gainesville News; Hubert H. Dyer, editor Royston News; Senator Jack Williams, editor and publisher Waycross Journal-Herald; Harmon W. Caldwell, president of the University of Georgia; W. J. Dozier, editor Douglas County Sentinel; Elmer G. Campbell, of the Atlanta Georgian; Rush Burton, editor Loxley Times; and M. S. Hodgson, Athens businessman.

SAFETY MAJOR TOPIC OF STATE TRUCKERS

Georgia Body Hears Addresses by Federal, National Leaders.

MACON, Ga., Feb. 19.—After hearing several talks centered around highway safety and co-operation of truckers with all safety organizations, members of the State Motor Carriers and Trucking Association closed a one-day convention in the Hotel Dempsey tonight.

Speaking at a banquet concluding the session, John L. Rogers, of Washington, director of the Bureau of Motor Carriers of the Interstate Commerce Commission, explained to the truckers the details of the federal motor carrier act, telling of the present situation. He asked co-operation of all state associations in administering the provisions of the act.

Ed V. Rodgers, of Scranton, Pa., president of the American Trucking Associations, Inc., told the operators that "the higher degree of safety you attain, the more business you'll have."

He cited winners of national safety awards, declaring that operators of those lines enjoyed increased business because of their safety records.

At the afternoon session Rodgers also spoke.

"I want every truck operator and every truck driver in this country to double his efforts to promote safety on the highways in 1937," he said.

"Motor transportation in the United States has progressed during the last 12 months due to the enactment of federal regulation. The future of the industry is bright."

He praised officials of the staff of the Bureau of Motor Carriers, pledged co-operation of the industry with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

A. E. Abernethy, Atlanta, state president, was in charge of the meetings.

Carl F. Jackson, an agent for the National Motor Freight Classification, also spoke at the afternoon session.

Before the Georgia legislature which concern the association were discussed by several speakers.

Other speakers during the afternoon included L. A. Raulerson, chairman of the board of governors, Southern Motor Carriers Rate conference.

W. J. Phillips was in critical condition tonight from bullet wounds he told police were inflicted by his husband before he shot and killed himself.

Mrs. Phillips told Police Captain H. M. Adair her husband, from whom she had been separated since last September, met her on the street last night, walked beside her for a block or two, and asked her to "make up" with him.

She said her husband then suddenly drew a pistol, held it to her breast and then turned the gun on himself.

SCHARFF IS ELECTED BY MACON CHAMBER

MACON, Ga., Feb. 19.—(P)—Byron D. Scharff, packing plant manager, was elected president of the Macon Chamber of Commerce at the annual meeting held here tonight. He succeeds Edward T. Flanders.

Other officers chosen are T. Baldwin Martin, national counselor; Guyton G. Abney, treasurer; A. O. B. Sparks, second vice president; Peyton W. Jones, third vice president. Directors were reduced in number from 21 to 12 and the vice presidents from five to three.

Dr. E. Merton Coulter, Athens, spoke on "Developing a balanced economic system."

SHIP BLAST VICTIM.

TALBOT C. KEY, 73, DIES IN LA GRANGE

Retired Manager of Estate Succumbs on Birthday

LAGRANGE, Ga., Feb. 19.—Talbot Crawford Key, resident of LaGrange for the past 17 years, died this morning at the residence on the seventy-third anniversary of his birthday.

Born in Meriwether county, near White Sulphur Springs, February 19, 1864, Mr. Key moved, as a young man, to LaFayette, Ala., where he lived until coming to LaGrange in 1920. During his residence here he was business manager of the Jim Truitt estate until a few years ago, when ill health made retirement necessary.

Active in the work of the Baptist church, he served for a number of years as deacon in the First Baptist church and was for a period of several years clerk of the Western Baptist Association.

Rites will be held at 2:30 o'clock Sunday at the First Baptist church. Survivors include two sons, William C. Key, of Washington, D. C., and John Edward Key, of New York; a grandson, W. C. Key Jr., of LaGrange; and Atlanta, two brothers, Robert C. Key, of LaGrange, and J. M. Key, of Sacramento, Cal., and two sisters, Mrs. Susie Tucker and Mrs. Annie E. Goodman, of LaGrange.

DR. I. G. HARDMAN, 80, BURIED AT COMMERCE

Home Filled to Overflowing by Friends as Final Rites Are Held.

COMMERCE, Ga., Feb. 19.—(P)—Friends of Dr. I. G. Hardman, a political associate from throughout the state gathered in Commerce today to pay final tribute to Dr. Lamar-tine G. Hardman, 80, former governor of Georgia, at services held at 3:30 o'clock at the residence.

Dr. Hardman, who was the state's chief executive from 1927 through 1931, died yesterday in an Atlanta hospital after a week's illness with a heart ailment.

The Hardman home was filled to overflowing, and scores of persons stood in the lawn, with bowed heads, throughout the services. Dr. H. H. Shell, of Bainbridge, and Dr. C. C. Tooke, the former governor's pastor, officiated.

Simple Rites.

The final rites were marked by an unusual simplicity. Amid a vast bank of floral offerings, Dr. Shell read a brief scripture passage. Dr. Tooke led the prayer, and a male quartet rendered two of Dr. Hardman's favorite hymns, "Beautiful Isle Somewhere" and "Crossing the Bar."

At the graveside in Gray Hill cemetery, another short Scripture passage was read, and the burial was conducted with the quietest of "Amen With Me," and the benediction was spoken by Dr. Shell.

Active pallbearers included three nephews of Dr. Hardman, Fred Williamson, Charles and Colquhoun Hardman, and Joe Deadwyler, Sam Hood, Dr. A. A. Rogers, Dr. L. Sanders, Judge W. W. Stark, C. W. Hood Jr., H. H. Harber, Claude Montgomery and L. L. Davis.

The honorary pallbearers included directors of the Northwestern Banking Company and the Harmony Grocers Mills, of which Dr. Hardman was president; the board of education, of which he was chairman for many years, and the members of the staff which served during his administration.

Educators Present.

A delegation from the University of Georgia, Mercer University and Shorter College, all of which he served as trustee and board member, was headed by Dr. Spright Dowell, president of Mercer.

Official state representatives appointed by Governor Rivers included Attorney General M. J. Zeonamas, Secretary of State John B. Wilson, State Treasurer George B. Hamilton, Superintendent of Schools M. D. Collins and Comptroller General William B. Harrison.

State President John B. Spivey and Speaker of the House Roy V. Harris named an official general assembly delegation to follow Dr. Hardman, head of Carlton; Almond, of Athens, and Allen, of Toocoo, and Representatives Brooks and Wages, of Jackson county; Hill, of Ware county, Palmetto, of Hall, and Allison, of Gwinnett.

SUPREME COURT PLAN OPPOSED BY RUSSELL

Junior Senator Joins George in Criticism of Roosevelt Proposal.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Feb. 19.—(P)—In a letter to Judge Gordon W. Chambers, made public here today, United States Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., intimated he would oppose President Roosevelt's plan for reorganization of the United States supreme court.

"I would not like to see anything done," the letter said, "which would tend to make a political body of the supreme court or impair its independence, nor which would create in the public mind any idea that the court was subject to outside domination."

Senator Walter F. George, in a letter to Judge Chambers, said in a review of all circumstances, "I cannot support the recommendation of the President upon this question, which I regard as fundamental."

AUGUSTA LABOR BACKS EIGHT-POINT PROGRAM

ATLANTA, GA., FEB. 20, 1937.

THE TEXTILE AGREEMENT

The announcement of Dr. Claudius E. Murchison, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, upon the return to the United States from Japan of the delegation representing the textile interests of the country, that an agreement has been entered into with Japanese manufacturers limiting exports of cotton piece goods to this country, means that a serious and rapidly developing threat to the cotton mills of America has been eliminated.

For several years many American textile leaders have been much concerned over the growing competition of Japanese textiles in the American market. So serious have been their protests that the friendly relations between the two nations have been threatened.

How useless this near-hysteria has been is revealed by the statement of Robert W. Philip, of Atlanta, secretary of the American textile mission to Japan, that "the Japanese manufacturers were perfectly willing to accept our terms."

If anything has been clear, incident to the industrial development of Japan, it has been that the Tokyo government and the manufacturers of the country have been continuously willing to enter into trade agreements on a "live-and-let-live" basis.

Such an agreement was reached between Japan and Great Britain several years ago, whereby Japanese imports to Australia and British-controlled areas in the east and far east were rigidly restricted.

Great Britain was largely actuated in seeking this treaty with Japan because of the threat to the wool producers of Australia. British exporters were demanding that tariff walls be erected against the importation of Japanese manufactured commodities into Australia, but had the British government acceded to these requests it would have meant the bankruptcy of the wool producers in Australia, since Japan buys the greater part of their production.

The same situation exists with American cotton and American cotton textiles. Japan is now the greatest purchaser of the cotton produced in the south. If the American government had acceded to the demands of the short-sighted textile manufacturers of this country and raised a tariff barrier against Japanese imports, then Japan would have looked elsewhere for her cotton and the south would have gone bankrupt.

It is fortunate that the Cotton Textile Institute adopted the wise plan of sending a capable mission to Japan for the purpose of arriving at a mutually satisfactory limit to Japanese textile imports into America.

The statement of Mr. Philip as to the reception given this mission in Japan is convincing evidence of the value of trade co-operation as compared to tariff barriers.

Since Japan, through necessity, has converted herself into an industrial nation her manufacturers have time and again sited that they wanted only their rightful place in the structure of international trade. Certainly Japanese textile interests have lived up to this pledge in their ready agreement to the proposals made by the mission representing the textile interests in the United States.

BILLIONS FOR DESTRUCTION
The British government has just announced that it intends to spend $7,500,000,000 on armaments during the next five years. A London dispatch quotes the official "White Paper" as saying that "deeply as it deplores the necessity of this vast expenditure on armaments and other defensive measures, the government is convinced it must be undertaken."

What this implies is enormously disquieting.

We have grown accustomed in this country to great outlays for human relief, for public works, for aid to disadvantaged groups of our people. These are expenditures to rebuild, where they are not directly fruitful in gains to the nation.

But the British military budget is for a different purpose. The money is to be spent for weapons to save England from being defeated in a war which is certain to ruin the world and so make life after the struggle a far from engaging prospect.

It is not difficult to visualize the benefits to humanity if these seven and one-half billions were used to eliminate slums, to enlarge educational opportunity, to strengthen social security, to beautify the existence of the masses, to provide fresh fields for the expanding joy and creativeness of human beings.

Yet the British authorities cannot take this course—they can only make ready with instruments of death to destroy an enemy.

Plainly Downing Street has made up its mind that this is the only way in which to deal with Germany. British foreign policy has taken such a turn before. And, in the final event, Germany did become the aggressor and all the world was caught in a struggle the marks of which are still upon mankind.

Does history repeat itself? Almost a generation ago, Earl Grey saw in Germany a nation outtopping all others in military strength, but only two or three years ahead of other powers in armed preparations. The outcome of that competition was the World War.

ADULT POLITICAL EDUCATION
The movement to establish groups for the study of public affairs is fast gaining ground in Georgia. Never before has so much interest been shown in good government.

Among the leaders in the movement are the women of the state, led by the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

The universities and colleges of the state are responding to the need for education in public affairs also. These institutions can furnish group leaders to local organizations. All colleges and universities should co-operate in this movement and work together.

In order to prevent overlapping and waste of effort a state council on civic education is being formed. The purpose of this organization is to act as a clearing house for civic education in the state.

Much of the interest in public affairs is due to President Roosevelt. His radio addresses or "fireside chats" are listened to by millions of people. His interest in good government has aroused people throughout the land. Theodore Roosevelt had much the same knack for stimulating interest of the people in government.

When the movement in Georgia gains full force, the people of the state will be less willing to stand for slipshod methods in the conduct of the public business. Government will be cleaned up. Archaic institutions will be abandoned and modern ones will be substituted. People will make new demands for honesty in government.

Jefferson said one of the nails on which democracy hangs is education. The electorate must be informed in order for democracy to succeed. The Scandinavian countries are forging ahead today largely because of their excellent program of adult civic education. When people begin to discuss questions concerning the common weal, they will begin to think for themselves. As soon as this happens, the reign of the incompetent official will be terminated.

Among petrels in their native habitat, we assume that where one is noticeably stormy it is nicknamed Trotzky.

France Grows Impatient.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 19.—General Gamelin, the chief of the French general staff, who has been watching the evolution of the Spanish civil war situation very closely, has informed Premier Leon Blum that the hour has come when France, in order to safeguard her own interests, must put a stop to the slow conquest of Spain by Signor Mussolini and Herr Hitler.

At the same time, the French press, right and left alike, published a sensational document which shows that the Spanish rightists when they were in power in 1934 under Lerroux and Robles sold and handed over virtually all the mines of Spain. The victory of the popular front at the polls in February, 1936, made the fulfillment of this contract impossible of course. And that is why General Franco, after a long visit to Hitler early in May, 1936, raised the standard of revolt.

Germany wants the raw materials of Spain. She cannot get them from the Caballero government, but expects huge concessions from General Franco if and when he is victorious.

Neither France, Germany, Italy nor Russia is the least bit interested, diplomatically speaking, in the political ideology prevalent in Spain. When Mussolini says he cannot permit the establishment of a Soviet government in Catalonia, that is eye wash. You can hardly expect him to say that he has a share in a share in Spain's natural resources. Moreover, nobody has the slightest intention of setting up a Soviet government in Spain. A handful of Communists who lack all influence. The internal affairs of Spain are not a casus belli to any of the great powers. But the natural resources of Spain and North Africa are.

The cautious M. Yvon Delbos, France's foreign minister, has done his utmost to prevent the civil war from becoming the excuse for a general conflict. The French government has hoped for a compromise, as Mr. Blum, the premier, informed me in November when he said that he expected that Germany would desire to see when they realized that their support of General Franco could not remain indecent to France.

But they have not desired, Italian troops, it appears, took part in the capture of Malaga, while Italian submarines prevented the Loyalist fleet from running out of Alicante.

The incident that prompted General Gamelin to warn the French government that the limit has been reached and that France must act for her own safety and security.

M. Blum's newspaper, Le Populaire, followed by a warning that France will "directly intervene in Spain on the side of the Valencia government, unless Italy and Germany stop immediately their sabotage of the non-intervention agreement and international control is made effective straight away."

The French council of ministers assembled and the supreme military command was called together to discuss the danger. Today the 200,000 men in the southern French garrison towns are under marching orders at a moment's notice. If other words a threat of war exists.

Will Germany dare to go on and let it come to a war? Will Mussolini take another bold step and endeavor to force through his designs? The answer is in the negative. Germany is not in a position to fight France at present and even less France supported by her allies, Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union. Germany has no war stocks on hand and no raw materials and no money. Mussolini is enough of a realist to know that the French soldiers are not Italian tribesmen. He has no money either.

So what? Britain will have to act as arbiter. She will, of course, propose a compromise. That will be rejected both by Franco and Valencia. But in the meantime, international control in Spain was established. The Spanish ports. France is in earnest about this and could enforce it all alone if necessary, although Britain will assist. International control made really effective, however, will speed the end of General Franco's insurrection for alone he has proved himself incapable of downing the Valencia government.

France will not permit her peace to be not because of her Fascist theories, but because General Franco represents Hitler. Being a democracy, France has refused to be bombed by a maniac who is endangering the peace of Europe by sending troops to Spain as Hitler and Mussolini have done. It would be a grave error to see in France's conciliatory attitude and moderation a sign of weakness.

The French army is still No. 1 in Europe and France's military alliances are still the overwhelming force of the continent. It is not a question of Communism or Fascism in Spain that determines the French attitude, but the danger of seeing Germany installed on the Pyrenees in a Spain that would virtually be a German vassal state.

Good Morning.

BY LOUIE D. NEWTON.

Miss Emily Wright brought me a faded newspaper clipping the other day which is printed the obituary of Mrs. Jane Posey, who died in Newnan, June 13, 1880. I cannot tell whether it is a local newspaper or not. It may be a clipping from the Newnan Herald or one of the Atlanta papers, and the unlikely The Christian Index. The obituary is signed with the initials H. S. M. Mrs. Posey, one of the most illustrious women who ever lived in Georgia, was born in Virginia, March 20, 1735. She was 85 years old at her death.

Among her bequests was a gift of $10,000 to Mercer University for the education of worthy young men for the Christian ministry. Many fine men have been helped from this fund. She made other notable gifts to education and benevolence. Her body rests in the general resurrection in a private burial ground a few miles northeast of Newnan, near the Atlanta highway. The first time I ever visited her grave was in company with the late Dr. F. C. McConnell, a kinsman of Mrs. Posey's distinguished husband, himself a Baptist minister. Later a group of friends from Newnan and that vicinity gathered to raise funds with which to repair the iron fence about the grave and keep it in good condition.

Reading this obituary of Mrs. Posey has brought fresh to my mind the value and importance of obituaries. I sometimes fear we are overlooking the significance of making a worthy record as our friends pass on. I pause to say that the weekly newspapers are rendering invaluable service in printing obituary notices. I only wish they might be written as carefully as our fathers used to prepare them, including vital facts relating to the individual by which that person's work may be understood and appreciated in the long after years. The Christian Index and The Wesleyan Christian Advocate and The Georgia Baptist, published by our colored brethren, have obituaries every week, but their space is not sufficient to carry all that should appear. We are thrown back upon the weekly newspaper for our chief support in this important service, just as we are in many other instances.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

BY PAUL MALLON.

INNOCENCE WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Henry Wallace, the agriculture secretary, has been insisting all along that he is just a hayseed Puritan in the political world of Washington. He just cannot seem to understand politics—he says.

Some doubt about it arose during the last presidential campaign, when Mr. Wallace played Little Red Riding Hood to Governor Landon's wolf throughout the farm belt, and won every state, including Kansas.

After what happened in the secret meeting of his recent committee of 18 farm legislation framers recently, it has become increasingly evident that Mr. Wallace's beard is getting a little heavy for the Red Riding Hood role.

EXPERIENCE It did not get out at the time, but there was one thing in Mr. Wallace's official manuscript for the farm conference that the farm representatives declined to read from his prepared script. They were ready to back him on ever-normal granary, crop insurance, soil conservation and all the other things, but they scratched their ears when they saw he wanted to continue the soil conservation and domestic allotment act until 1942. His ally, Chairman Jones of the house agriculture committee, had then gone so far as to introduce the official Wallace bill in congress, proposing extension until 1942.

The farm representatives reminded each other that there would be another presidential election in 1940 and that Mr. Wallace was being prominently mentioned as a possible candidate of the new order.

Note—Incidentally, most of the agricultural congressmen are now confessing they did not really mean it when they wrote the law that the soil conservation and allotment act was to be turned over to the various states in 1938. In the words of one member of the Jones committee, they "just put that in for the benefit of the supreme court."

Such a disguise of the real purposes of federal control is now no longer considered to be essential, but it will be perpetuated to 1940 as a matter of routine.

PURPOSE The farm program seems to be simply this: Wallace intends to build up reserves this year by encouraging production; if surpluses accumulate, he wants to make commodity loans; and then in the year after the commodity loans are made, he wants to control production drastically to protect his loans.

The government intends to keep the following balls in the air at the same time: Commodity loans, crop insurance, soil conservation, loans to farm tenants, milk production control, drastic production control, buying of surpluses.

These balls will probably be juggled whether or not the President gets control of the supreme court, but if the President's court proposal goes not through, the ever-normal granary bill may not go very high. Wallace dare not make extensive commodity loans without having the power to control production drastically the following years. Otherwise, the government would get stuck with commodities at a loss, as the old farm board did.

However, Wallace's recent dire warning that supreme court repacking is vital to the success of his plans was generally recognized simply as an attempt to rally support for the President's move.

NAVAL AUXILIARY President Roosevelt has been quietly meeting with ship officers. Another series of White House conferences is expected next week. He seems to be interested in avoiding further strikes and in building up a "naval auxiliary" (this phrase is likely to be popularized instead of the old "merchant marine"). No commercial keels have been laid in two years, and there is much talk of reviving American shipping, although it is not yet clear how the idea will fit in with the unsettled neutrality program.

Appointments to the maritime commission have been delayed until the President can canvass the shipping situation.

DEBATE It appears some senators are writing their own speeches on the court issue. That always has been considered a dangerous practice in organized drives. It has resulted this time in considerable confusion among the advocates of Mr. Roosevelt's proposal.

For instance, advocating Senator Minton took the air to argue that the President should have the right to "unpick" the supreme court by packing it.

The same advocating Senator McCadoo, arguing the President would never, never think of packing the court, but merely wanted to help the overworked judges.

Third came advocating Senator Byrnes, saying the President intended to pack the court and it was a good thing.

The opposition had decided to remain quiet, permitting the proponents to conduct what amounted to an unintentional debate among themselves.

Spilling A Fair Tale.

Now comes one of those materialistic, scientific fact delivers, spilling of romance, to the benefit of persons upon the Legend of the Dogwood. Printed here last year it was republished, in answer to scores of requests, in last Sunday's column.

But one who signs himself "C. R. Hardy" on a postcard postmarked from Tampa, tries to get literal and matter-of-fact.

He says, forsooth, that the dogwood—though he, the blighter of romance, calls it "Cornus florida"—is a native American tree and never grew in Palestine, if ever, till after 1492. "So what?" he concludes, and inscribes himself "Yours sympathetically, C. R. Hardy, who is a student of botanical detail." Why spoil a good story just for scientific accuracy?

I'll bet you don't believe in Santa Claus.

Beauty College Goes Co-Ed.

Little item just handed me by the erudite state news editor, Jack Tubbs, Esq., carries the information that the college of beauty in Newnan, Georgia, town has just enrolled its first male student. Hitherto it has only been girls who aspired to professional beauty in the cosmetic art.

This youth is reported as an apt scholar, thoroughly interested in his work and planning to open a Beauty Shop in his home when he has earned his diploma.

An Idea Flipped.

Thought I'd found an idea for the column when a gentleman endeavored to give me a useful tooth merely by the physician of the lining of the heart (endocarditis) and valvular damage, and therefore requires the physician's close attendance.

Choking me with the notion, more than one joint is as likely to be infectious as it is nutritional. Chronic arthritis involving only one joint is more likely to be traumatic, that is, the result of injury or strain.

Chronic infectious arthritis involves several joints eventually, though in the first year or so the victim may be more likely to attribute the trouble to chronic nutritional arthritis involves many joints from the beginning and is always of gradual insidious onset and steadily progressive, unless correctly diagnosed and checked by treatment before tissue atrophy and degeneration have done irreparable damage.

Arthritis is not caused by a life and death question, it is foolish to sacrifice such appearances on mere conjecture or suspicion. For instance, don't give up a useful tooth merely by the physician of the lining of the heart (endocarditis) and valvular damage, and therefore requires the physician's close attendance.

The Pulse of the People

The columns of the Constitution are always open to the expressions of the public, regardless of the opinion expressed. The only limitation on communications is that they shall be signed; be brief—preferably not longer than two or three hundred words—and not libelous. CONSTITUTION MUST BE UPHOLD

Editor Constitution: The supreme court is the pride of all Americans for on those benches the greatest judges of our country have been appointed. None hand-picked to pack the court to decide the ruling of any one man's mind.

The constitution must be upheld. Laws that are laws from this high tribunal must be obeyed or all our laws will be lawless.

Knowing the worth of The Atlanta Constitution, its age and influence with the people of the south I send this letter to you.

MRS. H. I. ROSS, Birmingham, Ala., February 17, 1937.

WRITE THANKS "AS CITIZENS"

Editor Constitution: Accept our thanks as citizens for your editorial on the supreme court controversy.

MR. AND MRS. J. J. NEVILLE, Atlanta, Ga., February 17, 1937.

FAIR AND LOGICAL REASONING

Editor Constitution: I want to congratulate The Constitution for its editorial "Supreme Court Must Remain Independent."

The Constitution has long been famous for its excellence in analysis of public affairs, but this one contains such fair and logical reasoning, and calls attention to the dangers surrounding one of the President's suggestions, that it must appeal to everyone regardless of their political opinions.

I used to think that the editorials in the old New York Sun were the leaders in this line but yours of the 15th surpass anything I have ever read.

W. D. HOFFMAN, Atlanta, Ga., February 17, 1937.

IS SUPREME COURT SACROSANCT?

Editor Constitution: An astonishing feature manifest in some of the current discussion concerning the proposed changes in the supreme court is the idea that the high tribunal is sacrosanct and above change or modification. A reading of the constitution would seem to disprove one's mind of such thought, but seemingly many people form their opinions without realizing the relation of the supreme court to the other two departments of government.

The supreme court is not sacrosanct. Proposals concerning the court should be dealt with in the same sane and forward-looking manner as would be the case in regard to the legislative or the executive branch of our government.

CARL BROOME, Atlanta, Ga., February 17, 1937.

DEFENSE OF PEOPLE'S RIGHTS

Editor Constitution: Please accept my congratulations on your logical and patriotic editorial entitled, "Supreme Court Must Remain Independent."

The fundamental truths enunciated by this clarion defense of the people's rights and freedom ring an echo of the magna charter and our bill of rights.

Long live The Atlanta Constitution to challenge and defend the United States Constitution.

W. J. DANIEL, Marianna, Fla., February 17, 1937.

THE SPIRIT OF AMERICANISM

Editor Constitution: I read in your fine editorial on the supreme court more of the spirit of Americanism than I have read in 10 years outside of the Bible and the constitution of the United States.

You are right in estimating the independence of the judiciary above any present legislation.

The demand that the judiciary shall follow election returns is too much. The people did not vote on the question of supreme court reorganization last November. The issue was not before them at all.

REFLECTS BELIEF OF COUNTRY

Editor Constitution: Congratulations to you for the stand you have taken in your editorial on the supreme court.

Wish your editorial could be read by every American. I think it should be read in Washington as a standing for what all real Americans believe in.

R. M. CRAWLEY, Preston, Ga., February 15, 1937.

NOT A PARTY ISSUE

Editor Constitution: I thank you for your editorial, "Supreme Court Must Remain Independent."

Seems to me the title alone would rally every American behind it. This is no party question, it transcends party issues. Let the south for once forget the Republican party, and remember that Democrat or Republican when ever imbued with the spirit of democracy is a real American.

MRS. F. W. BROCK, Elberton, Ga., February 17, 1937.

KEEP THREE BRANCHES SEPARATE

Editor Constitution: I have read with a great deal of pleasure the editorial you take toward the supreme court. I should like to join in the commendation of your editorial opposing a violent change in this very valuable tribunal.

The three branches of the government should be kept separate. I believe it is a deplorable situation when the supreme court becomes the plaything of politics. Such a condition may be a serious threat to the stability of the nation.

J. B. LOCKHART, Chairman, State Prohibition Party, Covington, Ga., Feb. 17, 1937.

SOUND STAND

Editor Constitution: Your editorial concerning the proposed change of the supreme court was the most direct, complete, sane and sound article yet written on the subject.

It is fine if every member of congress could read your fine editorial.

THOMAS H. PITTS, Atlanta, Ga., February 17, 1937.

THE DUTY OF AMERICANS

Editor Constitution: Congratulations to The Constitution for its editorial on the supreme court controversy.

It behooves every liberty-loving American to protect and defend our constitution, and ever hold in reverence the high ideals and sagacious interpretations of the supreme court.

HENRY GRADY COUCH, Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 17, 1937.

TOO REALISTIC AN OBJECT LESSON

Editor Constitution: A news item sets forth a parade planned by the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce for March 10, 1937, to portray the horrors of the automobile accidents, causing deaths and injuries to persons and destruction of property in Atlanta during the year 1936.

Let's not parade. But let us and our Junior Chamber men, businessmen, lawyers, doctors, bankers, ALL drive sensibly. We may calculate and speculate from any angle, but the causes of our accidents are from two sources—driving too fast and driving while under influence of whisky.

Those of us who are sober ought to have sense enough to drive sensibly. Drunken driving is one of the tragedies of our age. May God help someone to solve this problem of drunken driving.

W. H. MEACHAM, Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 18, 1937.

ATLANTANS CHARMED BY ARTUR SCHNABEL

Beethoven's Greatest Interpreter Acclaimed Enthusiastically After Concert.

By MARGARET WALKER.

Rarely do Atlanta music lovers have the opportunity of hearing so great an artist as Artur Schnabel, famed Austrian pianist who appeared in concert last night at the Woman's Club under the auspices of the Atlanta Music Club.

This marked the first Atlanta performance given by the man who is considered the finest Beethoven interpreter in the world, and his superb playing held spellbound the audience who filled the club auditorium.

Schnabel began his program with the Sonata in A major (post-humous) by Schubert, which consisted of six movements. In this work the artist displayed superb technique, and his contrasts of touch were truly great.

The Scherzo was the outstanding movement, but there was perfection in his interpretation of the different movements, and no matter what liberties he took, he preserved his tempo.

It was somewhat disappointing that Mr. Schnabel's program included so little Beethoven. His reason for the selection of the Beethoven group he played next, the Fantasia, Op. 77, Six Bagatelles, and Rondo a capriccio, Op. 120, a major, was revealed in a letter received by an Atlanta musician.

She wrote the pianist, asking why he did not play Beethoven's Sonata, Op. 111, and his reply was that this composition was heavy, and he would have to conclude his program with it.

And he wished to play Schumann's Die Davidsbündler as a climax last evening. However, he said, it would like very much to play this sonata next year in Atlanta.

A sympathetic understanding of Beethoven's music was revealed by this outstanding exponent of the Lechitzky school of playing. The Fantasia was played with subtlety, a characteristic which he displayed in the other movements.

One moment he caressed the keys, and the next moment he bore upon them with all the power of his marvelous strength.

The climax of the Beethoven group was the Rondo a capriccio, which was played with unbelievable speed, displaying marvelous scalework.

In the last number, the celebrated Schumann, Die Davidsbündler, Op. 6, which was so often played by Leschetizky's classes by his great pupils, the former pupil of the great master gave a poetic rendition of the 18 brief episodes which merged into each other. These episodes revealed the romance between the composer and his wife, Clara Wieck.

Thunderous applause rewarded Schnabel's performance, and the concert last evening will long remain in the memories of the Atlantans who heard him.

CHIANG, MATE TALK

Couple Appeal for Regeneration of China.

NANKING, China, Feb. 19.—(AP)—General Chiang Kai-shek, backed by a new government vote of confidence, and his American-educated wife, Mrs. Soong Mei-ling, tonight with a joint radio appeal to the nation in behalf of the "new life" program for regeneration of China.

It was the first time the nation's leader and his wife had addressed China in the same broadcast. Mrs. Chiang speaking in English and the generalissimo in Chinese.

Mrs. Chiang told the nation the "new life" movement, launched by the Chiangs three years ago, to transform the ethics and modes of living of China's millions, is gathering currents of patriotism from all over China into a flood of national unity.

No Left Turn Repeal Vetoed by Hartsfield

Repeal of the "no left turn" law in the city of Atlanta, voted Monday by general council, was vetoed yesterday by Mayor Hartsfield as he approved practically every other paper passed by council.

"I am going to send this back to council with the suggestion that the law be amended to allow left turns into driveways, etc., in the middle of blocks in the residential sections but that they be prohibited in the congested areas," said the mayor.

He explained that though the no left turn law is still in effect, the police are not making cases except in a few places where left turns in the middle of the block tie up traffic.

There are several buildings in the downtown area that should be excepted in the amendment," Hartsfield asserted. "Some places cannot be reached except by left turns and council should take these into account."

Meanwhile, left turns in the middle of the block in any section of the city are illegal.

The mayor heard more than 100 papers voted on by council at his session at the beginning of the week.

DUST BOWL DICTATOR ADVOCATED AT PARLEY

Residents of Plains Area Get First Respite in Six Days.

GUYNON, Okla., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Beggared residents of the high plains "dust bowl" breathed tonight the first respite in six days from choking clouds of blowing soil as federal and state forces marshaled a determined fight to check the "black blizzards."

Light rain, snow and subsiding winds largely dispelled the fog of dust from parts of western Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado and Texas, but new dusts spread a pall over northern and central Oklahoma.

From 26 Counties.

Delegates from 25 wind-erosion Kansas counties assembled at Garden City, Kan., to discuss a plan for putting windblown sections of western Kansas and neighboring plains states under a "farm dictatorship" until erosion is bridled.

Shouts of approval greeted Scott Crook, Wichita county farmer, when he asked the group if it was ready to submit to an authority which would enforce dust-control measures.

At Washington, Senator Josh Lee, of Oklahoma, said, Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator, had ordered postponed a reduction in Oklahoma relief rolls because of the dust.

Ask United States Aid.

Congressman Phil Ferguson, of Woodward, Okla., proposed the Rural Resettlement Administration take over 50,000 acres in Kansas and Oklahoma near Liberal, Kan., for a vast study experiment. President Roosevelt was requested to retire 50,000 additional acres from cultivation in western Oklahoma and return it to grass for cattle ranges.

Guymon folk busied themselves at "spring house cleaning" as the sun broke through the black dust clouds for the first time in six days.

Housewives plied their brooms, and merchants shoveled dust and sand from sidewalks and stores. Girls doffed their smocks, unwound bandanas from their heads, and began thinking once more in terms of facials and permanent waves.

POPE ABLE TO WALK BY USING CRUTCHES

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 19.—(AP)—

Pope Pius walked more faltering steps today with the aid of crutches and a cane, and his glasses were encased in a special frame.

He was unable to attend the first sermon of Lent. He did, however, greet the faithful in a broadcast from the pontiff's general condition, greatly improved in recent days, was said to be unchanged.

ALBERTA'S DEBT LAW IS DECLARED ILLEGAL

EDMONTON, Alberta, Feb. 19.—(AP)

Alberta provincial judges today declared the province's debt law unconstitutional today by Justice A. E. Ewing in the Alberta supreme court.

The judges declared the law unconstitutional because it gave the province the right to raise taxes without the consent of the legislature.

FLOOD CONTROL WORK IS SPEEDED UP IN SOUTH

Huge Force at Work Strengthening Levees Along Mississippi.

NATCHEZ, Miss., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Lieutenant Colonel William F. Tompkins, United States engineer for the second flood control district, said today at New Orleans that the people of the lower Mississippi valley should thank the Ohio valley for sending its massive flood down the Mississippi and causing rapid completion of widespread flood control work in his district.

Colonel Tompkins said 6,000 men, the greatest force ever concentrated in his district, was at work building levees, sandbagging low spots of earthworks and manning 12 towboats and 200 barges of a fleet made ready to rust concrete slabs and placing them on any trouble area from Natchez to New Orleans along the Mississippi river.

The levees were watched more closely today while the great river flowed its crest top by Vicksburg and Natchez on down the valley toward the Gulf of Mexico.

INSTALLMENT XXX.

Fog, seeping into the Old Bailey, hung like a dingy transparency over black gowns and coarse gray wigs. It misted the yellow light globes, quivered in wreaths over the packed rows of spectators, and blurred the twelve faces of the jury now turned, as one, on the witness undergoing cross-examination.

The witness was Nicholas Godfrey Blundell, solicitor. Strangers saw in the box a man slightly past middle age, vigorous, and with a manner blunt, frank and obliging.

Very different was the counsel conducting the cross-examination. Sir Kingsley Baxter, tall, angular, and calculating even in his suavity, gave an impression of altogether a more sophisticated type. There was a sharp edge to him, and a nervous brilliancy soon to be more apparent than now, when every faculty was bent on eliciting facts concerning Rose Somervell's illness which might throw an altered light on events as set forth by the prosecution.

Sir Kingsley, proceeding: In regard to your late secretary, Elsie Dilworth, Mr. Blundell. Was it a habit of hers to consult you at suitable times?

Blundell: Well—occasionally. She believed business always came first.

Sir Kingsley: On this occasion was the matter important? Or, better, could it have waited till your return to London?

Blundell: I suppose the idea was she didn't want to wait. It was Sunday, remember.

Sir Kingsley: Was it your suggestion or hers that she work on Sunday?

Blundell: She volunteered to come for the morning. She said that now and again when we were in a bit of a jam.

Sir Kingsley: So she volunteered to come. . . . Can you positively state it did not strike you as unusual for her to intrude on Mrs. Somervell's luncheon party?

Blundell: (Hesitating) I was a trifle surprised.

Sir Kingsley: O, you were surprised! Now, Mr. Blundell, can you say if Miss Dilworth had previous knowledge that the accused would be luncheon with Mrs. Somervell?

Blundell: That I don't know. She may have learned of it from chatting with Mrs. Somervell's housekeeper.

A murmur ran through the court. Diana felt a shiver of excitement, which Colin Lambroke, beside her, seemed to share.

Sir Kingsley: Exactly when did Miss Dilworth come into the dining room?

Blundell: Midway through the meal. I remember I was at the side table, carving a second helping of beef for Mrs. Somervell. Miss Dilworth stood by me, showing me the shorthand she couldn't read.

Sir Kingsley: Had she often any difficulty deciphering her notes?

Blundell: Very seldom. Around that date she was getting nervous. Those notes were all of a muddle.

Sir Kingsley: It did not occur to you she might have muddled her notes on purpose.

Blundell: (After pause) No—not at the time.

Sir Kingsley: Have you thought of that explanation since?

Blundell: In a way. It would be unlike Miss Dilworth's character as I knew it, but she had certainly changed.

Sir Kingsley: Could you have said then what was responsible for her nervous condition? I'll make it more definite. Had you any idea of her being the victim of an unfortunate love affair?

Blundell: Absolutely none. I never connected love affairs with my secretary.

Sir Kingsley: Not even when for some time she had worn quite different clothes? Adopted what two witnesses have described as a gay style of dress, combed with the use of lipstick, rouge and other accessories?

Blundell: (Scratching his chin) I did wonder a bit. I can't say I failed to notice it.

Continued Monday.

MANNERS OF THE MOMENT

Just forget about your toothache, and it will be all right.

Those people who treat other people's toothaches and headaches as though they were mirrors, ought really to be visited with one bang-up impacted molar. If they had a good rousing throb in the left jaw, they might know that just having some kind friend say, "Your toothache will go away if you just forget about it," doesn't help any more than waving a raw beefsteak over your left shoulder would.

A person who really believes that ailments are all in the mind knows better than to go to the thing that way. It's no way to cure a mind. But trust the person who doesn't really believe what he's saying to come along and tell you that the whole side of your face is a part of your imagination. It drives you mad.

The only thing to do with people of this sort is to tell them bluntly to go home and get their own heads straight. With you, we only hope that you have a room of your own with a key that fits the lock.

But all of this probably sounds morbid. We really hope that you won't be having either toothaches or headaches.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

A LITTLE SATURDAY TALK.

During the past two weeks, we have had stories about "Weapons of War." Now the series has come to a close, and I am not sorry. There are things about war which I think we should know, but it is a sad topic to say the least.

Often I wonder how it could possibly happen that after all the centuries of human history, there still could be such a thing as war in the world. During travels in many countries, I have talked about the subject with people in large number and all of them have seemed to believe that peace is better than war.

Reports from Europe have told the danger of a general war but there is at least some hope that the war clouds will pass. One thing on the side of peace is the memory of the World War, which ended only 18 years and three months ago. People do not want the same suffering to come again.

If the world, or at least most of the world, can stay at peace for the next half-century, we shall see wonders yet unknown. Scientists and inventors are at work learning new things and making new things. Within a very few years, television probably will become an everyday fact for homes all over the world. It is a fact now, to a small extent, and we can count on experts to make television cheaper and more powerful. Think of how interesting it would be, this spring, to watch the coronation of Great Britain's new king through a television set!

Many other events of equal, or perhaps greater, interest will be watched through television in time to come. I have enjoyed listening to reports of football games, but how much more exciting it will be to see the players running about on a radio screen at the same time we listen to the spoken report!

Then there is the airplane. It has done great things to speed transport, and in the future we may expect great progress in making air travel safer.

I can see no reason why airplanes should not be safer than automobiles. Road space is closely limited, but air space is so vast as to be almost unlimited.

It may not be long before we shall have airplanes with which we can land on a road of ordinary width. Then, after folding the wings, we shall go on with our journey as though riding in a motor car. Something had been in the air already, and in years to come it should be made practical for all of us.

BREAK O'DAY!
By Ralph Moore

GLEN ARVEN COUNTRY CLUB, THOMASVILLE, Ga., Feb. 19.—It was just this morning I was ready to qualify as editor of the advice to the lovelorn column.

The subject was going to be one of particular interest to young ladies and was to be entitled "Never Marry a Tournament Golfer Pro."

But just then I talked for a while with Mrs. Craig Wood and the subject doesn't sound nearly so good. In fact, I am thinking of abandoning it.

It should be noted just here that professional golfers have a gift when it comes to selecting wives. The wives, without exception, could qualify as first-string competitors in a beauty contest. And Mrs. Craig Wood would be one of those in the running for first prize.

The lot of the wives of the professional golfers isn't an easy one. They have to sit around the clubhouse or follow after papa while he goes out and shoots for the money that buys food and stockings and gasoline and dresses.

And very often papa's game goes a bit stale and he isn't winning any money. But mamma has to keep well dressed or the wives of the other pros will begin wondering about it and talking. And the other pros will begin saying maybe papa is slipping. So the front has to be kept up. And sometimes the putts won't drop and the drives go haywire, and there are days when they watch the restaurant checks.

It's a lot different from being married to a gentleman who goes to work at a certain hour and who quits at a certain hour. And who hands his pay check to the little woman every week. In this game, papa goes out and shoots for the money and if papa doesn't shoot well, there isn't any money.

THE NEW PATTERNS.

Mrs. Craig Wood thinks it's swell being the wife of a professional golfer, and especially being the wife of Craig Wood, who very often is in the money. But even if he wasn't, she'd still like it.

"I don't think I could endure life when the pattern was the same every day," she said. "I like this traveling from tournament to tournament. It's an adventure. And every tournament is a mystery and a game."

"What about the nerves?"

"Well, the first year I suffered a lot, I guess. But that's part of it. You get the heartache and then the joy of winning. You have to learn to take it. And you have to learn not to be upset or nervous, because that might affect your husband's game. But I think it's wonderful."

Mrs. Craig Wood had her baptism of fire early.

She was married to Craig Wood in the spring of 1934. In the spring of 1935 Craig Wood walked off the 18th green at Augusta in the Masters' tournament of that year and said to his wife, "I think I've won this one for you." It meant $1,500.

It was exactly 4 o'clock in the afternoon. A year before the hour and the minute they had been married.

It was Craig Wood's anniversary present.

Thirty minutes later Gene Sarazen fired that double eagle and caught up with Craig Wood. He won the $1,500 the next day.

Try that on your first wedding anniversary and see if you can smile and take it like the splendid person Mrs. Craig Wood happens to be.

MISS AUGUSTA.

The day Gene Sarazen sank his second try for that double eagle, a calf made its appearance in this world on his farm in Connecticut. He named it Miss Augusta.

This afternoon I was walking with Mr. and Mrs. Sarazen as Sarazen played his first round.

"How is Miss Augusta?"

"Hadn't you heard?"

"What?"

"Miss Augusta is going to become a mother."

"Honest?"

"Yes, honest. It's to be early this summer."

"Are you still going to call her Miss Augusta?"

"Oh, yes; Mrs. Augusta wouldn't sound so well."

"It sounds rather like a scandal."

"Well," said Gene, "Miss Augusta won't mind."

"You know," said Mrs. Sarazen, "it is perfectly remarkable how fond that Miss Augusta is of Gene. You know, as a rule, cows don't make pets. They are a bit indifferent. But this cow thinks Gene is grand. She follows him around. Last summer we were down at the swimming pool. The cow came down to the fence about the pool, which was, at that place, just one strand of wire. She got down under it and came over to the pool and just stood there with us. And when we left she got back under that wire and went on off in the pasture. We have a lot of cows, but Miss Augusta is the favorite."

Mrs. Sarazen, too, thinks it's fine, being the wife of a tournament golfer.

"You learn how to take it," she said. "And then, Gene has such a marvelous philosophy about the game. And that helps." The professional golfers are the finest amateurs I know. They have the finest amateur spirit in sport. And their wives have it, too.

MR. CHRIS BALANIS.

It seems my fate to be under the protection of the Greek nation. In Atlanta I would be lost without the brothers Hanjaras, George and Angelo. And no sooner did I go out seeking a thick steak with French fries and lettuce with Roquefort cheese dressing, but I find myself in the hands of Mr. Chris Balanis, from the city of Trikala in that dear Greece.

Mr. Balanis, for the sake of euphony, has changed his name to Chris Blaine. But his heart is in Athens. I mean Athens, Greece. Not Mr. Harry Mehre's town of Athens, Ga.

Mr. Balanis had me worried at the start.

"Mr. McGill," he said, "I bet on your toothball prediction and oh, Mr. McGill, what you do to me on that Georgia Tech-Georgia game. Oh, Mr. McGill, you ruin poor Chris."

I think I successfully blamed the whole affair on Mr. Mehre for not telling me he was going to win and I denounced Mr. Alexander for not telling me he might lose. This mollified Chris.

"I guess those coaches are pretty tough to understand," he said.

Chris said a mouthful. The steaks were excellent.

THE SIREN SONG.

Just this morning I almost left the golf tournament. Mr. Jim Petty, the well-known Atlanta ad man, passed through Thomaston. He was en route to St. Marks for fishing. After listening to Mr. Petty, I almost bought a rod and reel and some other tackle and went to St. Marks. Mr. Petty has promised to catch a bass large enough to feed the buyers' table at his place of business. I hope they hold him to it.

CHAMPS DEFEAT PEERLESS, 56-33; BIG STORE LOSES

Favored Southern Bleachery Team Upset By Canton Indians, 43-34.

By Jack Troy.

The two big features of the quarter-finals round of the Southern Bleachery tournament last night were, viz, and to-wit:

The collapse of the Southern Bleachery five, which was the class of opening night, and the startling upturn of the Peerless five, of Chattanooga, in the face of J. P. C.'s powerful Progressives, who drove on to their 36th straight victory in amateur play.

Canton's Cherokee Indians were superior in all departments to the Bleachery team, from Taylor, S. C., winning, 43 to 34. Culver Kidd, former Tech guard, scored 15 points to lead his mates to an upset victory.

It may have been that the crippled routing of Hendley, Bleachery center, hurt the visitors, but it is to be doubted that the Indians would have been denied. The Indians led at the half, 26 to 11.

J. P. C. GETS STRONGER.

The Progressives, defending champions, will take a lot of beating in this tournament. They have played their first two games without Pony Mink, star guard, and are getting stronger as the most progress.

The score of their game with Peerless was 56 to 33. Steve Browdy scored 15 points. Hyman Katz was next with 10.

Coch Shep Lantz, of J. P. C., was pitted against his cousin, Walter Lantz, coach of Peerless.

And is Sonny Dietz a conscientious official? Well, he put out his nephew, Happy Ginsberg, of J. P. C., on four persons.

Warren looked very impressive in taking back Halle Cohen's Big Store five from Jacksonville, Fla., 34 to 26.

The Big Store lineup was studded with former Florida "Gators," but a lot of water has passed over the dam since they were collegians. They found the swift pace set by Warren too much to cope with.

Franklin Stull was put on Virlyn Moore and held him down for awhile. But, class will tell, Moore finished the game with 17 points to take high scoring honors for the contest.

The shooting of Gene Warlick and the excellent floor play and rebounding of Young Jim Bagby were other highlights of Warren's victory.

Ken Rad, of Owensboro, Ky., took a goodly lead over Carter Shoes, of Nashville, but found the Tennesseeans breathing on their necks before it was over.

In fact, Ken Rad committed a foul just as the final whistle blew and when Bob Holland made both shots good, Ken Rad was the winner by only two points, 37 to 35.

And so there are three Georgia teams surviving in the semi-finals which will be played tonight. Two of them, of course, are Atlanta teams, J. P. C. and Warren. The other is the Cherokee Indians.

The Indians will have to whomp it up still more to enter the finals, for their foe tonight is J. P. C. The Indians and Progressives meet at 9 o'clock.

The first game will bring together Warren and Ken Rad at 8 o'clock.

As things now stand, it appears that two Atlanta teams will play in the finals. The Progressives and the Warrens have the look of finalists.

J. P. C. Defeats Peerless Mills.

Jewish Progressive Club coasted to an easy 56 to 33 victory over the Peerless Spinnery, of Chattanooga, Tenn. It was the 36th straight amateur victory for the Progressives, who are favored to retain their title won last year on the Atlanta Athletic Club court.

Hard luck on a crisp shot may have cost the Carter Shoes team, of Nashville, Tenn., a place in the semi-finals.

It was late in the game and Carter, staging a stirring comeback, was only six points behind. The goal would have put them right in there, for as it happened, the final score was 37 to 35.

JOHNNY REVOLTA, HERMAN BARRON ARE 2D WITH 70'S

Manero Has 71 and Sarazen's 72 Leaves Him Well Up.

By Kenneth Gregory.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Feb. 19.—(AP)—The undulating greens and fairways of Glen Arven's sporty golf course succumbed today to a concerted attack on par in the first round of Thomasville's $3,000 open tournament, with the 15-hole lead resting in a three-way tie.

Nine members of the touring professional brigade cracked regulation figures and seven others, including lanky John Oliver, amateur and former Georgia-state champion, equaled the card.

"Lighthorse" Harry Cooper, Chicago veteran and leading money winner of the winter circuit, stroked his way into the pace-setting triumvirate at 69, three under par, along with curly-haired Dick Metz, of Chicago, and Henry Picard, the slender Hershey, Pa., pro.

Cooper, recent winner of the Houston, Texas, open, continued his machine-like golf to clip three strokes from par on the outgoing nine. He equaled standard figures on the home-ward journey. Metz and Picard had cards of 34-35.

Johnny Revolta, of Chicago, and Herman Barron, of White Plains, N. Y., whose 64 a year ago established a course record here; Johnny Revolta, the Chicagoan who triumphed here last winter; Leonard Dodson, of Springfield, Mo., and Jimmy Thomson, the blond beller from Delaware, Tony Manero, of Salem, Mass., the national open champion, fired a fine 71, one under par, and was dandified two strokes back of the leaders along with Jim Fogarty, of Boston, Mass.

Down in the list of a half dozen who equaled par 72 was Dapper Gene Sarazen, who made spectacular recoveries and covered the flag dead on approaches—but his putts wouldn't drop.

On the seventh hole, the little Italian drive dropped behind trees in the dogleg stretch. After studying his lie, he took the No. 4 wood with which he made his famous double eagle at Augusta two years ago, played an intentional back between two pine trees six feet apart.

PUTTER FAILS.

The ball traveled fully 225 yards and Gene got his par. On every hole the ball was fairly well up approaches but his putter failed him.

"I ought to go back to Florida and get one of these electric waves on short putts," he said. "It's gotten so you can get away from this area that I need something for those short ones."

While Sarazen, former United States and British open champion, failed to maintain his promise of bagging a 70 every time out after his body-cleansing in a Florida sanitarium, he was stroking his shots "better than ever."

Sarazen, equipped with only 14 clubs in compliance with the U. S. G. A. regulations to go into effect next year, had a 35-37-72. He was tied with Oliver, Herman Rama, Vic Ghezzi, of Deal, N. J., runner-up last year; Ed Dumas, of Augusta; Horace Smith, of San Francisco, Cal., and Jimmy Hines, of Garden City, L. I. The best single nine in the battle for the top prize of $700 was turned in by Dodson, who negotiated the outgoing side in 32, four under par.

Grouped at 73 after the opening round were Lloyd Mangrum, unattached; Leo Walper, of Washington, D. C.; Harold (Jug) McSpaden, of Boston, and Ky Laffoon, of Chicago. Bill Terrell, Herb Norton and W. D. Tumin, of Atlanta, had 80, 81 and 82, respectively.

Sewanee Gains First Victory!

SEWANEE, Tenn., Feb. 19.—(AP)—The University of Tennessee Junior College became Sewanee's first basketball victim of the season tonight, losing by the Tigers, 42 to 39.

It was Sewanee's first victory of the school year in any sport.

L. S. U. Defeats Tulane, 37 to 31

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 19.—(AP)—For the third time this season Louisiana State's basketball team proved too strong for Tulane's cagers, who dropped a 31-37 decision before a big crowd tonight in the Greenies' field house.

It was the same old story—too much Arnold Bryan. The flashy Tiger forward bagged 15 points to lead his team to victory and increase his Southeastern Conference total.

It was Louisiana State's 18th consecutive basketball victory over Tulane.

Tech and Georgia To Clash Tonight

Fans Are Warned All Seats Sold for Cage Battle at Naval Armory.

By Jack Troy.

All tickets for the Tech-Georgia basketball game tonight have gone away.

The game is a complete sell-out. Professor A. H. Armstrong yesterday announced that the fans ought to know this in advance in order to save themselves a needless trip to the armory.

There is a limited seating capacity at the naval armory and early yesterday afternoon all available seats were sold in advance.

THE LINEUP.

Vandiver	F.	E. Jones	F.
Harold	F.	Jordan	F.
Farren	C.	Johnston	C.
Thompson	G.	Hyder	G.
Harman	G.	Sims	G.

The game tonight is the last for Tech on the home court. It is the final game of the regular season for Georgia.

The Battling Bulldogs of the Boards, having beaten Alabama and Auburn, among others, will seek tonight to snap the victory streak of Georgia Tech in conference competition.

Tech's Jumping Jacks, tree-top tall, have won eight straight.

BIDS ASSURED.

On their record, both Tech and Georgia will receive tournament bids regardless of the outcome of tonight's game. Tech, of course, has clinched a place. And Georgia insured a bid by turning back Auburn this week.

But the game goes beyond that. It's a Tech-Georgia game and anything can happen. The Jackets defeated the Bulldogs by a margin of 14 points in Athens. The Bulldogs will battle to even the count for the season.

A startling lineup for Tech is expected to include Ed Jones and Bill Jordan, forwards; Ed Johnston, center, and Whack Hyder and Fletcher Sims, guards.

This combination has worked together best for Coach Roy Mumford. It's the combination that probably will open in tournament play.

STARTING FIVES.

Georgia's starting five probably will see Coot Vandiver and Ralph Head at forwards; Jack Farren at center, and Olin Thompson and Harry Harman at guards. Vandiver and Harman are Atlanta boys.

Charlie Harold will be available for service either at forward or center, or both.

Harman played one of the greatest games of his career against Auburn the other night. He bored under both baskets and came out with the ball so many times as to create the illusion there was a bevy of Harman on the loose.

His running mate, Oscar Thompson, played a great floor game and shot eight points. Lanky Jack Farren was the chief figure in the late scoring surge which gave Georgia a two-point victory.

Coach Rex Enright told the boys before the game that it was up to them. Either they beat Auburn or lose a trip to the tournament. They went out to win, and did, in one of the hottest defensive battles staged in Woodruff hall in many an evening.

NEED NO URGING.

No pep talk of any sort will be necessary tonight. The fact that Georgia is playing Tech and vice versa is all that the players need to know.

Tech is the favorite. The Jackets have an advantage in height. Then, too, they have, perhaps, more reasonably sure shots than the Bulldogs.

In the first game, however, Georgia was hurt immeasurably by the loss of Jack Farren, who went out in the first half on personal fouls. If Farren stays in there tonight, there is really no way of telling what might develop.

And it's a complete sellout. There won't even be standing room. Which further emphasizes the dire need of Atlanta for a suitable place to put on athletic events, not alone basketball.

PAT BERG WINS AT PALM BEACH

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 19.—(AP) Patty Berg continued her triumph swing through the winter golf tournaments today, annexing the annual event at the Palm Beach Country Club with a 4-and-3 victory over Helen Dettweiler, of Washington, in the final.

Miss Dettweiler, three years older than the 19-year-old Minneapolis miss, frequently outdrove her opponent but Patty's steadiness was reflected in her medal card of 67, only one over par, for the 15 holes.

After bogey five halved the first hole the redhead took the lead on the second, where Helen's chip was too short, and never gave it up. Miss Dettweiler dropped the third with three putts and the short fourth with a poor tee shot which struck a boy in the gallery to the left of the green.

The match ended when they halved the 15th. Both put their second shots out of bounds and finished with sixes.

American University Women Hold 10th Conclave in Savannah in March

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 19.—The tenth national convention of the American Association of University Women will meet in Savannah on March 15-18.

The theme of the convention is "Education—The Foundation for Social Organization." Among the distinguished speakers on the program will be Dr. Meta Glass, president of the American Association of University Women and president of Sweet Briar College; Dr. Kathryn McHale, general director; Morse Cartwright, director of the American Association for Adult Education; Dr. William C. Carr, director of research, Educational Policies Commission of the N. E. A.; Dr. Mary R. Beard and others.

The convention will assemble representatives of the association's 54,000 members organized in 146 local branches throughout the United States and in Alaska, Hawaii, the Philippine Islands, Puerto Rico, China, Japan and Argentina. Education is the center of the association's activities and convention reports will include the story of the fight of local branches and state divisions on behalf of schools and libraries during the depression, and also a report of the association's work in improving educational opportunities for women in colleges and universities, and securing equal recognition of women with men on faculties and in student bodies.

A. U. W. members carry on an extensive study program, and in response to current interest in economic and governmental problems the association has recently added a department in social studies. Other departments of study include educational standards and trends, child development and education for family life, international relations, and the arts. The association provides opportunities for gifted women through the award of research fellowships, and the Savannah convention will celebrate progress in raising a million dollar endowment for that purpose. Contributions bringing the endowment to over a third of that sum will be reported at the convention.

Historical Savannah in the spring offers every inducement to the guests and delegates who attend the convention. The famous old squares and institutions, the ante bellum plantations, the country estates, and the old slave huts provide sight-seeing for every interest.

Only a short distance from Savannah are the Magnolia Gardens and Middleton Gardens, the most beautiful gardens in the world, at Charleston, S. C. The local branch of A. U. W. offers a warm welcome to all members who may be able to arrange their itinerary to include this historic city.

Miss Holle To Wed Robert L. O'Kelley In LaGrange, Ga.

LAGRANGE, Feb. 19.—Cordial interest centers in the announcement of the engagement of Miss Sara Frances Holle and Robert Leon O'Kelley, of Grantville, the marriage to be solemnized on March 27 at the home of the bride-elect's parents on Park avenue.

The bride-elect is a charming member of the younger social contingent of LaGrange, possessing a lovable manner that has endeared her to a host of friends. She graduated from LaGrange High school and the Georgia State College for Women in Milledgeville. Following her graduation from Georgia State College for Women, she taught two years in the public schools of Franklin. She has been a student at LaGrange College this year.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Frederic Holle Jr., and is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Frederic Holle, pioneer citizens of LaGrange and Troup county, and of the late Mr. and Mrs. John R. Wooten, of Eatonton. Her only brother is William Frederic Holle III.

The groom-elect is the son of Charles D. O'Kelley and the late Mrs. O'Kelley, of Grantville. He graduated from Newnan High school and completed a business course in Newnan. He now holds a position with the Grantville mills in Grantville. Mrs. Ben Brum of Talladega, Ala., is his only sister. Raymond O'Kelley and Harold O'Kelley, of Atlanta, are his brothers.

Miss Angier Weds John Wilt Wagner.

The marriage of Miss Kathryn Angier to John Wilt Wagner was solemnized Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the pastor's study at Druid Hills Baptist church. Rev. W. A. Cowan performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families of the bride and groom and a few close friends.

Clarence Angier III gave his sister in marriage and Mrs. Clarence Angier Jr. was her daughter's matron of honor and only attendant. Mrs. Angier wore a costume of navy flannel silk, with short sleeves. Her flowers were Tulleman roses.

The bride was gowned in pale blue lace with high neckline and short, puffed sleeves. She wore a strand of pearls and carried the lace handkerchief which her mother had used at her wedding. The bride's bouquet was formed of Briarcliff roses.

After the ceremony, Mrs. Angier entertained at a reception at her home on Highland avenue. The house was decorated with yellow flowers and Mrs. Bertina Carlton and Mrs. Kathleen Parr assisted in entertaining.

Mrs. Wagner and his bride left for a 10-day trip to Harrisburg, Pa., the former home of the groom, and upon their return they will reside at 129 North avenue. Mrs. Wagner traveled in a gray wool dress worn with a gray swaggar fur coat.

Mrs. Mankin Gives Luncheon on Feb. 25.

Mrs. Helen Douglas Mankin has issued invitations to a luncheon to be given at 1 o'clock next Thursday at the Atlanta Woman's Club.

The occasion will honor Mrs. E. D. Rivers, First Lady of Georgia; Mrs. John B. Spivey, wife of the president of the state senate; Mrs. Roy Vincent Harris, wife of the speaker of the house of representatives, and Mrs. Helen Williams Coxon, member of the state legislature.

Mrs. Mankin is the only woman besides Mrs. Coxon who is a member of the state legislature. Invited to meet the honor guests is a representative group of prominent Atlantans.

To Preside at O. E. S. Anniversary

Mrs. Dora Brittain Hamilton, worthy matron of Georgia Chapter No. 127, O. E. S., who will preside over the celebration of the chapter's twenty-first birthday anniversary next Thursday evening.

ITHACA, N. Y., Thursday.—Arriving in the late afternoon I was able to go to the alumni banquet yesterday evening with Miss Flora Rose. I anticipated hearing the glee club sing with pleasure, for I think the glee club here is particularly good, but I rather imagined the rest of the evening would be a succession of speeches, much like every other public dinner.

We had a pleasant surprise, however, when Sydney Landon, professor of dramatics at Ithaca College, gave us what he called two sketches of literary men. He made himself up while talking to us about the character of the man he was about to portray. For one minute he turned his back, put on a wig and the last touches of his make-up, still talking, and then turned around and addressed us in character.

He actually looked and spoke like Rudyard Kipling and like Mark Twain. He had seen and met them both, and was able to give a very realistic performance. The entire group not only enjoyed these sketches, but appreciated every bit of the humor and pathos he put into them. I could not help but think of what an addition this would be to the study of literature.

We breakfasted at 8 this morning with the same group of men and women who so kindly came and talk with us every year. The question propounded was: "Is it possible to prophesy the agricultural future of the country, say 30 or 40 years from now?"

This question is, of course, of deep interest to the College of Agriculture and the College of Home Economics, for they are training boys and girls today whose future is bound up with the agricultural future, not only of this state, but of many other states.

How hard it is, however, to project oneself into the future. We are always prone to think of the conditions which are with us today as being permanent conditions. To have a vision or a dream, one must be able to guess at what changing conditions may bring and prepare for them. I am wondering if our changes will be entirely economic, or will be greater along mental and spiritual lines. In the future, will what we are, what we can appreciate and what we can enjoy matter for us, or will the emphasis be on what we have and on what we can acquire?

Later in the morning, after a short talk with the council of women, we hurriedly visited a number of exhibits. To me, the most interesting one was called "Making of a County." It took the history of this little county for the past 100 years, bringing together many things belonging to families in the past. At one table it put into juxtaposition an implement used a hundred years ago and the implement used for the same purpose today.

After a very pleasant lunch, we went over to Bailey Hall for the speeches and I listened with great interest to Mrs. Morgenthau and Dr. Parran, surgeon general of the United States. He has a special claim on this audience, having been head of the state department of health when my husband was Governor, and then under Governor Lehman.

"YOUR FIGURE," MADAME!

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

SKATERS CUT GOOD FIGURES. With television coming a little closer every day, radio stars are taking a cue from the ice queens and skating to either improve or retain their figures. According to sports authorities, this exercise is on a par with swimming for building lovely figures. And one has only to look at Sonja Henie, Maribel Vinson or Bess Ehrhart to believe it.

The Rockefeller Plaza outdoor ice pond is rapidly becoming a rendezvous for entertainers from the near-by broadcasting studios. Patti Pickens, Irene Rich and Lucille Manners are among the most enthusiastic of the studio skaters—and all have beautiful figures.

So many of the famous skaters are now on the ice that it is small wonder American women are turning to this sport for recreation and exercise. Sonja Henie, who has been an Olympic champion for 10 years and Bess Ehrhart, the Wisconsin wonder, cut dazzling figures—on the ice or off it. Ida Lupino, the Hollywood beauty, exclaims figure skating is her favorite hobby, and Elsie Janis, once idol of the doughboys, is a splendid skater—proving you don't have to be in the championship class to be beautiful.

Ice skating is said to be on a par with swimming in that it brings all the muscles into play, and there is nothing to keep the skater from slimming the hips and strengthening the muscles of thigh and leg. Skating also takes on the movements of the dance in a more austere pattern. While the ballet dancer changes swiftly from one pose to another, the skater must be required to hold the same pose for several minutes while continuing to flash across the ice. At many of the famous rinks, the walls are lined with mirrors, and skaters practice each difficult pose meticulously to acquire the grace that is as important as accuracy.

Muscle is coming to be a factor in the artistic development of the sport, and some of the skaters work out entire programs which are performed to music, as Miss Henie has done with her lovely Swan Dance.

Perhaps the greatest impetus, however, is given by the radical change in costume. Once the skaters' clothes are heavy, cumbersome things that made movement constrained and awkward, but the new costume is as light and graceful as a ballet dancer's, with short, diaphanous skirts and sometimes short sleeves and low neck.

Although this sport makes such an appeal to women, and even has a woman patron of the ice, it is not lacking in masculine followers. Bill Tilden, the tennis star, is known as an enthusiast, and Lou Gehrig, of baseball fame, skates regularly.

Go ice-skating to improve or retain your figure.

ularly at the Rockefeller Plaza pond to keep his legs limber. Also skating there may be seen Edward G. Dunn, former American champion, whose 31 years have not impaired his skill on skates.

Hollywood Today

By SHEILAH GRAHAM.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 19.—There are more home-looking men in Hollywood—apart from the stars—than anywhere else in the world. But, in spite of this handicap, they do very well in the glamorous, lovely ladies of the screen. You see, there is enough gentleness to go round—both Margaret Lindsay and Janet Gaynor have been minus a bean for several months—and at every party there are two women to every man.

The high-class females must take what they can get—and like it. They usually love it, due to the average masculine brilliance of mind, rather than of face and body. Most male escorts are shorter than the stars they marry—or escort. A great number are bald. Several resemble the hairy type of ape. The majority wear eyeglasses.

Director Anatol Litvak, preferred friend of blonde beauty, Jean Harlow, is stockily built, with masses of iron-gray hair and a guttural speaking voice. He is also charming, well read, well informed, and what is more important from the Hopkins viewpoint, understands the female of the species.

Before George Lombard graduated to friendship with Clark Gable, the man with whom she went to the races, tennis matches, et al., was writer Robert Riskin, who lacks hair, height, and impressive facial features. But Bob has a good speaking voice, a sense of humor and a mind like a needle-point. Previous to the Lombard era, Riskin was courted by Glenda Farrell, who now reserves her smiles for Assistant Director Drew Ebberson, pug-nosed, heavily built, of medium height, but owner of an entrancing smile.

Until William Powell courted Jean Harlow, the plump ex-platinum blonde was engulfed in a cycle that included her late husband, mite actor, Paul Bern, of quiet disposition, indistinguishable in a crowd, and ex-husband Hal Rosson, short, inarticulate, and owner of a little on which grows a mouse-colored mustache and is fairly bald.

The secret of writer Delmer Daves' success with Kay Francis lies in leadership. Delmer is boss, which fact lends a beautiful glow to his red hair, belligerent face and slightly swagging walk.

Norman Krasna, writer-producer and Hollywood expert in chief, is a dynamic, opinionated and owner of an inferiority complex that manifests itself in seeming aggressiveness. He also wears glasses, and is a devotee of Sylvia's affections—Producer R. P. Schulberg is middle-aged, thick-set, with a strong, fleshy face, thick-lipped, shrewd, deeply set eyes, and is fairly bald.

How To Make Him Propose

BY MELVYN DOUGLAS

Screen Actor

MELVYN DOUGLAS

If you aren't finding romance, the chances are that you are not meeting the sort of people who might be attracted to you.

Mix with the many people as you can. Get out of your shell and become interested in humanity. Otherwise it will not be interested in you. Don't be forward, of course, but don't be bashful.

If you don't know what to talk about, get into the habit of reading the general front page topics that all men talk about when conversation doesn't come too easily. Be conversant on all the major subjects of the day so that you will have something to say to people. This will attract them to you.

Keeping fit is another way of saying, "be alive."

If you don't want to be left out of things, learn to dance and to play bridge. Learn to swim, to play tennis and golf, and to enjoy all the other sports that will bring you into companionship with people. Have hobbies. You will not only grow more interesting, but you will get to know people.

Whatever you do, though, don't get pedantic about what you know and don't monopolize the conversation. That will only make you a bore and drive people from you.

Learn to be a good listener. When you meet a man you like, let him do the talking and take a lively, sympathetic interest in what he has to say. It will be flattering to him and he will enjoy your company.

If you win his interest and his friendship, it shouldn't be long before you will be a good listener. When you meet a man you like, let him do the talking and take a lively, sympathetic interest in what he has to say. It will be flattering to him and he will enjoy your company.

MINISTER SEEKS KIN OF GARRETT

Admits Accepting $500 To Trace Relatives in Snuff Estate.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 19.—(P)—The Rev. Elmer Wickel, of West Leasport, Pa., testifying at a hearing on the $200,000 Henrietta E. Garrett estate, said today he had accepted $500 expense money in his efforts to trace the relationship of the late Daniel Shaver, of Holland county, Virginia, to Mrs. Garrett.

Mr. Wickel said he did not get "one penny for my time" in his work for persons who seek a share of the estate through the claim of relationship to Shaver and Mrs. Garrett.

Clifton A. Sowers and George Ross, examiners at the hearing, hinted freely in questioning witnesses that syndicates and family agreements had led into the case by groups of the 20,000 claimants to the Garrett snuff fortune.

Mrs. Garrett died six years ago, leaving a will which disposed of only $82,000 of the estate.

Reunion and Banquet To Be Held Tonight By S. I. S. P. Group

Celebrating friendships which began 33 years ago in the first Y. W. C. A. gymnasium, the annual reunion banquet of the S. I. S. P. Club will be held at the Wincoff hotel this evening at 6:30 o'clock. Four charter members will be present and messages will be read from former members who live in other cities.

C. M. Snyder, advertising manager of The Atlanta Constitution, will be guest speaker, and Miss Mary Phelps, president, will serve as toastmaster. Mrs. J. Christopher Brown will sing, accompanied by Mrs. Alan Stanford, according to announcement by Miss Virginia Harrison, program chairman for the 1937 banquet.

Charter members who are still active in club work are Misses Genevieve Saunders, Florence Williams, Eloise Bowie, Caroline Thomas. PATTERN 5562

Spring enchantment! A knitted sweater suit that will add diversity to your wardrobe. It's easy to knit, too, for plain skirt and sweater jacket are done mainly in stockinette stitch, with a simple waste stitch for yoke and cuffs. Germantown yarn gives it body without weight and works up quickly. In pattern 5562 you will find complete instructions for making the sweater suit shown in sizes 16-18 and 35-40, an illustration of it and of all the stitches used; material requirements. To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to Household Arts Dept., The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and pattern number.

Interesting Georgia Personalities VIA THE ZODIAC

By BERNICE DENTON PIERSON, Foremost American Astrologer.

MRS. AHAZ MCPHERSON.

April 16 marks the natal day of Mrs. Ahaz McPherson, popular member of the Tau Beta Phi Sorority.

This brings her birthdate under the influence of the Zodiacal sign Aries, whose governing planet is Mars.

A chart set for this interesting birthdate shows the ruler of the sign to be in the midheaven or vantage point, and well-aspected. This position confers friends, social qualities and positions of honor and trust.

The Moon-Mars position adds courage to the nature and shows her to be practical and enterprising. It also gives cheerfulness, love of fine things and inherited courage.

Her chart shows that she has initiative and that she accepts and lives up to life's responsibilities. She wants to do things that are worthwhile and will accept the responsibility of making them come out right.

The Sun-Mars position shows travel and adventure.

You can get your complete astrological forecast through The Atlanta Constitution, compiled by Bernice Denton Pierson, one of America's best known astrologers. All you have to do is to fill in the coupon below, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, together with 10 cents in coin to cover mailing cost. You will then receive through the mail certain pertinent facts which deal astrologically with the sun at the time of your birth, called a sun-chart, and with this sun-chart, a series of numbers which will enable you to identify the planetary interpretations, which will be published in The Atlanta Constitution each day, dealing with the influence of a given planet on the day of your birth, according to the rules of astrology. When you have checked each of your numbers your forecast will be complete.

SONS OF REVOLUTION CALLED TO DEFEND U. S. SUPREME COURT

Society's President General, Speaking Here, Urges Retention of Present Form.

Georgia Sons of the American Revolution were called upon to aid in preserving the present form of government last night by Messrs. Kendall, distinguished president general of the national society, who uttered a vigorous defense of the supreme court of the United States and termed it the "bulwark against threats on our liberties."

Addressing a session of the Atlanta chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution, the national officer said "one of the purposes of our national society is the protection of our form of government, which would be endangered by disturbing the functions of the judiciary."

President General Kendall, of New York, was formerly president of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and now heads numerous theater and mining enterprises.

"The supreme court has enjoyed greater respect than any similar institution in the world," he said. "It is the duty of this court to interpret the law in relation to the constitution. It should be above coercion and opportunism and even expediency should have no part in its decisions. It is the bulwark between our form of government and hasty threats against our liberties."

Cites 'Hasty Laws.' "Many laws passed by congress in the last few years have been hasty. The NRA is a good example. Many were enacted before legislators had time to discover the constitutionality or workability of the laws. Many of the legislators voted for them trusting the supreme court to do their thinking for them."

Madison once said government must govern the governed and then must control itself. Our government of three branches, the judiciary, the legislative and the executive, has never been the check and balance of this government."

"It is now faced with the alternative of retreating or losing its independence. We must not forget that there are appeals from the decisions of this court through constitutional amendments," he asserted.

The national president asserted the framers of the constitution had constructed it in such a way that its basic principles could survive the situations of today.

Kendall urged the Sons of the American Revolution to "talk patriotism" to combat subversive influences and to encourage love and respect for the present form of government in the youth.

He was introduced by Colonel J. D. Watson, commander of the Georgia Society of Sons of the American Revolution, while Dr. A. G. DeLoach, president of the Atlanta chapter, presided at the dinner held at the Capital City Club.

Charles J. Haden, of Atlanta, made a short talk on the life of George Washington, whose birthday was celebrated nationally Monday. Haden, praising the characteristics of the first President of the United States, said in effect that present-day statesmen would do well to return to the tenets of General Washington.

Kendall suggested making a national shrine of Temple Hill, in New York, where he said Washington once saved America from a military autonomy. He discussed plans and ambitions of his organization also and presented certificates of membership to new members of the Atlanta chapter. A number of others present were introduced at the banquet.

POISON JURY DISCHARGED. GRAYSON, Ky., Feb. 19.—(P)—Unable to reach a verdict, the jury trying Mrs. Nellie Sparks, 30, for the murder of her 4-year-old invalid stepdaughter, was dismissed today. The case will be retried next week.

South A Factor. "The greatest factor in the increase has been the extremely fortunate cash position of agriculture throughout the nation, particularly in the south."

The greater need for merchandise built up over seven years of strict economy, is creating a "reservoir for business in the coming year," Mr. Sparks said.

"Business men all over the country have abandoned the hand-to-mouth purchasing policy, and inventories of goods have been built up again, to place on a sound footing once more," he said.

Seniors Debated At Party Conference

Union Raises Additional Demand That G. M. Fire
All 'Stool Pigeons.'

DETROIT, Feb. 19.—(P)—The United Automobile Workers of America pressed tonight for an agreement with General Motors corporation providing "seniority based on length of service" for its members who are employed in the plants of the big automobile concern.

General Motors officials have indicated that any decision made in current conference with union leaders designed to compose differences, unsettled in last week's agreement which ended widespread U. A. W. strikes, would be extended to apply to all employees.

The corporation was represented as preferring the classifications set up two years ago by the since-repudiated Automobile Labor Board headed by Leo Wolman. These divided the workers according to skill and number of dependents. It was reported the union opposed these divisions because of a feeling they might lead to discrimination against some of its members.

An additional demand was formulated by union officials today when Wyndham Mortimer, first vice president, announced he would ask General Motors to agree to discharge all known stool pigeons.

Commenting on an assertion by a witness that officers of a union local had been detected agency informants, Mortimer said that in some cases after members were exposed as informants they had "remained in the employ of the detective agency to get information for the union," and in such cases had "turned over all their salary from the agency to the strike fund of the union."

The union men were arrested during an investigation of a clash last week between union and nonunion employees of two General Motors subsidiary plants here.

JURY AT ANDERSON. INCHON, Korea, Feb. 19.—(UP)—The Madison county grand jury late today returned indictments charging malicious trespass and riot against 19 members of the United Automobile Workers of America.

The union men were arrested during an investigation of a clash last week between union and nonunion employees of two General Motors subsidiary plants here.

APARTMENT BUILDING ON PONCE DE LEON SOLD. Sale of the Massillon apartment building at 198 Ponce de Leon avenue, 40-unit structure, was ordered yesterday by Judge John D. Humphries, of the superior court, after the Bank-Whitney Company, realtors, bid more than $125,000 for the property.

The deeds will be turned over today. The property was sold by order of the court for the Continental Bank & Trust Company of New York, representing the bond holders. The real estate company bought the building for Gordon Burnett, of Atlanta, who is acquiring it for investment purposes.

$1,501,930.151 BILL IS PASSED BY HOUSE. WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(P)—The house passed and sent to the senate today a $1,501,930.151 appropriation to finance the Treasury and Post-office Departments for the next fiscal year. The bill passed on a voice vote.

The allotment included $750,000 for establishment of trans-Atlantic air mail service.

Carrying $752,489,361 for the Post-office Department and $748,485,790 for the Treasury, the measure would provide $500,000,000 for the social security board's old-age reserve account.

'Lady in Red' Infuriates 'Fugitive' Long Horn. CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—(P)—A lady in red aroused a runaway steer from his contented nibbling of the greens on a peddler's wagon.

Excited by the woman's bright attire, the animal charged his screaming quarry who retreated behind a telephone pole.
